WE'RE ALL STRETCHED OUT!

Just what does being "stretched out" mean? In a small suburban high school housing just 440 students it means endless opportunities—opportunities that might be lost in a larger more imposing school system. It means providing choices for students from over twenty-four sports, twenty-five clubs, and 102 course offerings, including twelve advanced placement courses. This averages out to eighteen students per sport or club, and four students per course offering. Now that's really stretching it out!

To any outsider, a typical Chagrin student would seem superhuman. Although we have a small student body to choose from, our sports teams do amazingly well. Our golf, girls' soccer, and cross country teams consistently boast top rankings in the conference. Against larger schools, some over twice the size of Chagrin, we have prevailed. Accomplishments, of course, are often gained only through great sacrifices. Our football players, for example, must play both offense and defense, stretching themselves to the limit.

Nevertheless, a small school gives us the foundation to show our multitudes of talents. Many students successfully play three sports a year, are active in one or more clubs, and many handle eight classes a day. Overall, students at Chagrin seem to have boundless energy as do the teachers. Our faculty wears many hats as teachers, coaches, and advisors. Our 102 course offerings are fielded by thirty-three full time teachers. That averages out to over three different courses taught by each teacher five and six times daily. Virtually every teacher advises or coaches two or more activities. Even our principal functions as the assistant superintendent as well.

The Chagrin spirit keeps the school striving to be its best. Sometimes our time, resources, abilities, skills, and even patience are stretched. Perhaps it is our smallness itself that keeps us striving to be just a little better than anyone else. Whatever the reason, this year's Zenith is dedicated to all of us who stretched ourselves to the limit in '93.

Kate Mottinger

The girls' varsity soccer team know that Chagrin is #1!

STRETCH

(stretch)v. To lengthen, widen, or distend by pulling. To make taut; tighten.

To reach or put forth. To flex the muscles of. To exert to the utmost, strain. On the sidelines, the varsity football cheerleaders try to stretch the crowd's enthusiasm and pump up the team with their cheers. Lindsay Saylor energizes the crowd by jumping and shaking her booty. Nicole Esposito pushes her athletic abilities to the limit, as she challenges a Madison defender for possession of the ball.

IT is present in every school—rivalry. Kenston was this year's homecoming foe. Bob Rode displays this year's bonfire voodoo doll. Our attempted sorcery, however, could not win us the game, although several Kenston players were scorched with our voodoo magic. Now it's back to the cauldren to perfect our magic for next year's homecoming opponent.

OUT of the den comes our tiger mascot, Mortimer. With his vicious grin, orange and black stripes, and dangling tail, he is not hard to pick out on the sidelines at sports events. His new look is a symbol of our renewed pride and fierce attitude towards our opponents. Although Mortimer's overheated inhabitants changed weekly, they all maintained our Tiger Pride.

SENIORS

Think back. We walked into this school at 14 years old. We knew virtually no one except for fellow rookies. We were trying to find our way through this academic maze without success, regardless of that infamous and ever so helpful freshman orientation we attended. We didn't know anything about this school, and the seniors, unfortunately, didn't let this go unnoticed. They helped to make us feel much more comfortable by letting us sing "Farmer in the Dell" to a full lunch period or letting us fan a perspiring senior with an orange lunch tray. They seemed like adults, so we respected them and did what they said. We began to find our way around and started to climb the ladder of success. We went through the dullness of our sophomore year and the excitement of becoming an upperclassman. Finally, we entered the 12th grade. WE were seniors! We were the adults now. We were in charge of the pumpkin roll. We got the best parking spaces, and were allowed to sit in the senior lounge. We even got to sit on the floor during assemblies! People waited to find out what our class was planning for the weekends. And last, but not least, we were now the welcoming committee for the freshman. These were all little things, but somehow it all added up to the fact that our days at Chagrin Falls High School were gradually coming to an end.

This class pulled together within the first week of our senior year. The cliques were gone. We all partied together. We revitalized the spirit in this school and the meaning of dancing in the commons on a Saturday night. But then we soon realized this was our last Tigers football game, the last time we would hear the fight song echo through C. S. Harris Stadium, the last homecoming, last pumpkin roll, the last OABR, and the last party with friends. Oh sure, we fooled ourselves by saying we would be back, but we knew that nothing would ever be the same again. These people that we had seen everyday for four years, were all going to go their separate ways. We realized that this class really did mean something to us.

We will stay in touch with certain people, and some we won't see until the next reunion. But we will never forget the times spent with our close buddies and our not-so-close classmates. Each individual has their own memories that will reflect on the Class of '93.

*There are places I remember all my life, though some have changed.
Some forever, not for better, some are gone and some remain.*

*All these places have their moments, of lovers and friends that we still can recall.
Some are dead and some are living, in my life, I've loved them all.*
"I've Loved Them All" Lennon-McCartney

Jock, nerd, preppy, moron, bimbo, hippie, thrasher, dude. Let's face it, these are common stereotypes given to students at C.F.H.S. in past years which still hold true today. All right, peer pressure and societal pressure can influence a person greatly, but no one fits into a single stereotype. Students cannot be forced into a pattern; everyone will not fit in a single category. Students at C.F.H.S. are no exception. Most are scholars working to earn their grades, athletes striving for success, and most importantly, people having fun. To quote Fred Van Lente, a 1990 Chagrin graduate: "The next few pages of this yearbook is not a jumbled mosaic of the student body or class, but an anthology of individuals... each and every one of them."

Besides being individuals, the student body is inevitably divided into sections by age group. This division does not determine who our friends are, but as we grow older, we tend to identify more with our class. Seniors are the prime example to follow, seeing that they survived the whole school experience, from kindergarten through college admission. (That's why they get the large, colorful mug shots.) Seniordom has its privileges, but who says the underclassmen didn't have fun? The juniors were also able to taste seniordom, both with the pumpkin roll and prom, while the sophomores and freshman adapted to the school and await their senior year with anticipation.

PEOPLE

EXTENDING OUR RELATIONS

Saving Our Planet

Everywhere you go, someone is shoving the problems of the world in your face. But where do you start in solving the problems? Well, concerned high school students had ideas of what needed to be done, and the environment was at the top of their lists. In 1993, with so many problems in the world, the environment was prominent. The government gave us Waste Management to try to help, but effort was needed to be given by individuals too. Students at Chagrin Falls High School recognized the problems with the environment. Junior environmental activist Nicole Seaman said, "There is obviously a true concern for the environment by Chagrin Falls Students. But some are ignorant and don't realize how much still needs to be done." In 1992, Key Club took care of recycling by putting orange recycling bins in each homeroom. This was a good idea, but was not continued this year. The reason why was said to be because Waste Management did it for us. Although, there was controversy as to whether Waste Management really did its job. Students in Chagrin did care about the environment, although some sort of action needed to be taken; no club was formed. Nicole said, "We tried to start an Earth Awareness program but it never went through. There was a lot of interest. There's a lot more to be done than just recycling- that's all we really do right now. Students have to realize that if they're interested in doing something about the problem with the environment, they have to act. There has to be actions and not just talk." With environmentally-conscious juniors like Nicole Seaman, the class of 1994 will hopefully excel the effort to help the environment. Chagrin Falls High School students need to start traditions and habits that will continue after the class of 1994 is gone.

Junior Stress

You know the feeling: three tests and an English essay due tomorrow, not to mention the track meet that will last until at least 8:00 pm. The stress is building so what do you do? Every student experiences stress of some form in high school, but usually the junior year is most stressful. The class of 1994 was no exception. Most felt that SAT's and looking at colleges provided the most stress. Nicole Seaman felt this way: "The fact that we take SAT's and start worrying about colleges haunts you throughout the year." Some juniors had already experienced what stress is about, before their junior year. Marie Irvin said, "I worry about SAT's and colleges but I crammed a lot my freshman and sophomore years so it's not really hard yet this year." Juniors had different ways of coping with stress. Jim Vickers and Marie Irvin dealt with it by running every day. Between worrying about SAT's and keeping grades up for college, junior year can be stressful at times. But hard work always pays off, and makes for an enjoyable senior year.

We are Chagrin!

"WE ARE CHAGRIN!...WE ARE CHAGRIN!...WE ARE CHAGRIN!" No one that has attended Chagrin Falls High School will forget that famous chant, whether they heard it at a pep rally, game, or other school event. In 1993, Chagrin Falls students were proud of their school and were not afraid to show it. Chagrin is known for its competitive edge and this year was no exception. There were many opportunities for students to support themselves and other students. Whether in academics, athletics, arts, or other fields, we took advantage of these opportunities to support each other. Individuals as well as groups showed spirit by putting up locker tags, posters, decorations or making announcements. Some did their share by simply attending games. Often words of encouragement were heard in the halls, to support competitors. Students were enthusiastic about classmates' accomplishments as well as their own. Sara Tervo saw this year as being better than the others in school spirit. She said, "There's been more this than last year. A lot more school unity." School unity is definitely necessary and Chagrin has it. Chagrin Falls has shown that anything is possible if we all stick together.

Through the Years

Through the years people have changed along with their friendships. Best friends from the forth grade might be only acquaintances now, and people you would have never thought of before could now be your best friend. As Kristy Rop says, "Friendship means more now that we are older."

But all those laughs and fun memories from the past will always be there. Those friends from our childhood will always be best friends at the heart. So never forget these times because these memories can and will be from the best years of our lives.

The Joys of Health

Health class is everything-you've-always-wanted-to-know-but-were-afraid-to-ask, and everything-you-didn't-want-to-know,-but-were forced-to-find-out, all condensed into one semester. As one sophomore saw it, "If you are going to have to sit for 40 minutes, it might as well be in health, because in there it is anything but boring." Learning about your body structure, the reproductive system, drug abuse, and birth control are among the many rivoting topics talked about. Other surprises include such activities as hypnosis and being a parent. Having watched some great videos like The Miracle of Birth, disappointment sets in as the semester of health draws to a close. Once the curtain falls on this class, it's back to English as usual!

For sixteen years students await that magical moment when they are given their drivers license. Knocking down orange cones, parallel parking, reading "The Book" and watching gory drunk driving movies, are all a part of every aspiring young driver's frustration and fun. Finally the flirt (flurt)v. - to make playfully romantic or sexual overtures.

Playing the sex game is audacious, flirtacious and bodacious. Flirting is a part of life for everyone especially in high school. It is very common to see a freshman flirting with another freshman or an upper classmen. The question that was presented to the freshman was, what is your definition of flirting? We got some interesting responses, many of which are unprintable. Anna Jackson's response was "A great way to experience the meaning of life." Chrisy Carlson said "It all depends on the guy." Larry Miller responded by saying "It's a great way to see if a girl likes you." The closest response to the actual definition was given by Carolyn Hardesty, she said "Trying to get a guy to notice you!" The class of 1996 may not have the dictionary definition but they all know what it is!

Getting Noticed

Standing on a lunch table and singing I 'm a Little Teapot is probably not the most desirable way to get noticed. But it is all a part of being a freshman, which is not as easy as it seems. The immaturity that was once accepted in the middle school was no longer acceptable at the high school. They were not used to being the ones who were looked up to but then they were the looker uppers and were once again looked down upon. Getting "noticed" was once again a priority to some. In a poll of freshman we asked, "In your opinion what is the best way to get noticed?" Will Eaton said, "Stand on a chair and act like a monkey." Another response came from Chris Gaile who said "Get your head shaved and come to school!" These were a few of the interesting responses that we got, many of which were quite peculiar.

Holidays

"It would be so nice if we took a holiday to take some time to celebrate." Holidays are days on which custom dictates a halting of general business activity. Everyone has their one holiday that they look forward to. We asked a few freshman what holiday was their favorite and why. One response came from Tara Smith which was "Valentines Day because everyone expresses their love." Another came from Scott Sandmann, "Thanksgiving, because the food is great." We found Halloween to be a holiday most kids were looking forward to. Hallie Kuhr expressed her Halloween night activities, "I like Halloween because it is fun letting the cops chase us." Overall, Christmas was the favorite holiday because of the presents you get. Altogether the students really don't care what the holidays are, just as long as they get to miss school and celebrate!

IN MEMORY ...

A Eulogy Given by John Rydquist for Margaret Dahn

Margaret Dahn dedicated a considerable portion of her life to the Chagrin Falls School community. She was employed by the district for over 25 years and worked in the Middle School, Gurney School, and the High School. She was a significant member of the community and we shall miss her dearly.

In memory of Margaret, I offer the following Thanksgiving:

Margaret, thank you for being the person that you were. Thank you for understanding us as children even those of us who had to sit on the "blue bench". She often told the story of the "blue bench" at Gurney School where children who had gotten into trouble had to sit when disciplined. The "blue bench" was just across from Margaret's desk so she had a chance to observe the students. This perspective aided us tremendously years later in the high school.

Thank you for understanding us as adolescents knowing that we have many imperfections like not remembering to register for tests; mislaying important documents; being moody; impolite, and on and on. She accepted us as students realizing that we needed nurturing to mature to adulthood when hopefully we would be perfect human beings. On her desk was a filled candy jar which was much appreciated. In a way it was a symbol of her sweetness.

Thank you for understanding us as adults. Many of us did not mature and we developed our own adult needs along with our leftover childhood and adolescent needs. She was able to see through these charades to meet the need and to direct us to the help required.

Thank you for understanding us as parents. We can be so concerned about our child that we lose the idea that there are several children in the school. She was able to be empathetic to our parental concerns and help us with the task of parenting a child.

Thank you for taking the time to help those of us who were new to the community whether we were experienced, or new teachers, or new families, reaching out to us, extending your friendship.

Thank you for allowing all of us to place things on your desk to be taken care of, and they were. Regardless of how much you had to do, you found time to do more.

Thank you for your expertise and keeping us on our toes. She encouraged professionalism in educators, especially in the printed information that went out to the community.

Thank you for being the secretary, the nurse, the receptionist, the registrar, and all those positions you filled on a daily basis.

Thank you for taking the time to be personable, to ask how we were and how our families were, to compliment us, to share pertinent information with us, making each of us feel special.

Thank you for showing genuine interest and warmth.

Thank you for controlling your feelings so that our needs could be met.

Thank you for being approachable, polite, never mean, forever patient, and always ready to help.

Thank you for your family and friends that you shared with us.

Most importantly, thank you Margaret for your humility, your selflessness, your humanness, your concern for the welfare of others. Thank you for being a true friend.

An odd dichotomy came to me as I prepared for this memorial service. In many ways Margaret was very strong, and yet there is a fragileness to this life as evidenced through Margaret's sudden death. I would much preferred to have shared more of Margaret's friendship and wished her well in retirement than what I am doing.

Eric Clapton wrote a song about the tragic death of his son. The words go, "Would you know my name, if I saw you in Heaven? Would it be the same, if I saw you in Heaven? I must be strong, and carry on, cause I know I don't belong here in Heaven." I know Margaret is in heaven. If we too can be in Heaven, then we will share more.

Now, we must be strong and carry on.

Margaret, thank you for your life that touched so many of us. We will miss you. You will live on in our memories.

SPORTS

STRETCHING OUR LIMITS

Sweat, sacrifice, exhaustion, and accomplishment are all parts of athletic competition, but to Chagrin's students sports are much more. Since we are one of the smallest schools in our conference, our athletes must face a greater challenge. Size can be a large factor in athletics, but Chagrin beats the odds. Several sports such as cross-country and golf rank high in the state, defeating schools of much greater size. Our football, basketball, volleyball, softball, and other teams have to compete with groups of greater size and depth.

In order to beat these odds, students often stretch themselves to the limit. Looking at the number of sports our school has to offer, an average of eighteen students can participate in each. With these small numbers, it is difficult to fill teams such as football and track. Many students carry heavy schedules along with participating in at least two sports a year. Long practices and hours of homework can take their toll, however students at Chagrin manage to achieve the impossible in athletics.

1. Taylor Marshall works for extra yardage while carrying four Kenston Bombers.
2. Will Vranich hands off to Taylor Marshall.
3. Chris Clark struggles to hold on to the ball just after his reception during a 30-0 loss to Kenston.

Toughing it out in the CVC ompetition

"No coaching staff could ask more of their ball players than what they've shown, effort wise" states coach Bucar after finishing a 4-6 season. The Tiger offense turned over a new leaf this year, throwing some fifteen times a game, since passing utilized their skills best. Wide receiver Chris Clark completed twenty-six receptions overall. Quarterback Will Vranich passed for over 824 yards as passing was the team's focus on account of the very talented backfield. During running situation the Tiger's ground attack was led by Bob Rode who surpassed a thousand yards rushing over his career. Rode was helped by Brad Shellgren who averaged 7.1 yards a carry. Ben Ehrenbeit, who holds the record in tackles, led the team's strong defense with help from safety Taylor Marshall. Mike Voss was the basis of much of the Tiger's success, both offensively and defensively. Overall, the Tigers put forth a great effort and were a competitive team in the tough CVC.

The 1992 girl's Varsity Soccer Team had another excellent season while improving once again on the previous year's record. The majority of the team are all games into the tournament. This is quite an achievement considering the fact that they only got through one game last year. Many awards were received by Senior co-captain Jill Sincaglia spoke for the team when she said, "This is the best season we've had in all the four years I've been on the team. I'm just excited that I could be a part of it." As runner-up in the District Finals, the girl's team had gone three individual teammates, Nicole Esposito got first team All Greater Cleveland as well as Jill Sincaglia. Megan Ballantyne and Erin Eichler received second team All Greater Cleveland, and to top it all off, Coach Pamela Malone was awarded Coach of the Year. Congratulations to all for a season well done.

The Tigers finished the regular season with a record of 11-2-3 with a 5-1-1 mark in the CVC. As usual, the Tigers had a very competitive schedule, playing such soccer powers as Western Reserve, Rocky River, and of course gers became Sectional Champions in their 6-0 win over CCC. In District Semi-finals, the Tigers overthrew top-seed and state-ranked Kenston 3-2. Unfortunately, the season ended with a loss to University in the District-finals ending another impressive season. Although, the team will be losing 9 seniors, they still should be the team to beat in future years.

Jodi McNatt tried again for a state champion team. The Lady Tiger seniors with help from the juniors were able to beat Garfield Heights and had their share of "kills" throughout the season. There record did not show it, but there enthusiasm and strength as a team did show how hard they worked. Co-captain, Tira Stebbins said, "We learned how to communicate by the end of the season. The junior girls are going to have a great season next year. Too bad which teaches not only physical repetitiveness for ball control but psychological preparedness for game situations. I feel that the wins and losses record do not truly exemplify the quality of volleyball that has been played at Chagrin."

Although this season proved to be a learning experience, next years team will be all the more anxious to compete and win!

tennis courts and add one more. Fortunately for the tennis team, The Wembley Club allowed them to practice at 7 o'clock in the morning. Because of the lack of practice time, the team was not able to get totally prepared for the season. With only three returning lettermen, the team was extremely young and inexperienced. The team became used to traveling around in the great emy. Although they were lacking important necessities such as a court, the team competed very well. Co-captain, Courtney Munson, replied, "It was a tough year because we were a young team with only three returning lettermen, but we had a good time." Next year with more experience, the team will be much better.

The boys' and girls' teams combined to win 15 championship trophies during the 1992 season. Nine athletes received CVC league honors including five 1st Team and four Honorable Mention Selections. The boys and girls together had ten athletes make the All-District squad, three individuals made All-Regional, and those same three athletes earned All-Ohio honors.

The 1992 Boys' and Girls' Cross Country Teams had a strong and successful season, and hope to return next year even stronger.

Once again, the Tiger Golf team left an impression upon the area this year. With the return of many experienced players, the team was confident that they would have a chance to return to State. Seniors Brady Portaro, Chad Gibbs, Mike Young, and Tyler Davidson formed the nucleus of the team. With the help of Mr. Howell, the Tigers ended the regular season with an 18-2 record. On October 5 the Tigers placed third in the sectional meet, and on October 15, they captured second in the regionals to again advance to the state meet. Eventually, the Tigers placed third in State with Brady Portaro finishing fifth overall. Mr. Howell felt this way after the tournament, "It's been a most satisfying two years, after all, two trips to the State Tournament, it hardly gets any better than this." Next year, the Tiger Golf team will have a difficult time repeating their previous success, but Mr. Howell is anticipating a good year.

With neither the greatest talent nor size, the Tiger basketball team proved not to lack at all in one area: heart. In a very competitive CVC conference, Coach Bruce Johnson had the guys fighting tooth and nail from the start to finish of each game. Coach Johnson said, "With their winning attitude, the team is not afraid to step on the floor with anybody." Throughout the season, the league had been forced to take notice of the fiery Tigers as they knocked off many worthy opponents and continued to battle every team to the buzzer. Led by senior captains Michael Young and Chad Gibbs, along with seniors Todd Kruse and Taylor Marshall, and a plethora of junior talent, the Tigers provided exciting game after exciting game to their receptive and adoring fans. Relying on an athletic inside game that also opened up shots around the perimeter, the team tallied many points in their deliberate style of play. These tenacious Tigers have indeed turned some heads.

Under the guidance of Frank Phillips, the Varsity Girl's Basketball Team was a fierce competitor to the top teams in the league, losing only by a slight margin of four and six points to State-Ranked West G. and Chardon respectively. Their much improved record of 10-10 is hardly reflective of their talents and efforts. The Varsity team placed 3rd and 4th in the Eastlake North and Brecksville tournaments, while the J.V. team performed well at the Aurora, Madison, and Garfield Heights tournaments. Coach Wem states about the dual season, "We weren't as competitive in the dual meets as we wanted to be, but the bottom line of the sport is how many wrestlers move into districts and the state tournament." The 1992-1993 Gymnastics team finished their season with an outstanding 8th place in sectionals after a rocky start with Coach Murphy's injury. This season was a rebuilding season after losing two excellent gymnasts, but Catherine Eaton and Sarah Cooper led the way to victory. The gymnasts had a tough schedule to follow. They had to work around sharing the gym with basketball and wrestling, practice four or five times a week for two-and-a-half hours, and stay late nights with meets lasting later than ten o'clock, but this hard schedule left lots of time for improvement which everyone took advantage of. Each gymnast improved greatly over the last season, helping out the team immensely. Although their team was not as strong as last year's, they still pulled out a great season and had a lot of fun.

Probably the most pleasant sura reflection of their varsity comrades, the team completed the season with a good record. An excess of skill and participants, the majority being freshmen, helped to aid the 11-6-2 posting. Hopefully the success of the JV soccer program will continue to grow.

prise was the success of the JV Girls soccer team. With the introduction of the program just this year, there was skepticism as to the outcome of the season. But, with a sole loss to Hawken's Varsity team, the team ended up with a 11-1-1 record, making them league champions. Not bad for a team that had an average of nine players at practice everyday. However, with the rotation of players, and the strategic abilities of the coaches, the athletes defeated the odds. Congratulations girls, for a job well done.

Not only was the girls soccer team a success, but also the boys'. As

The JV Volleyball team was also fairly successful. With Mrs. McNatt as a first-year coach, the team exceeded varsity's win/loss record. Such success shows promise for the program in the coming years.

Unfortunately, not all the teams had great success. The JV Football team dwindled to a 1-7 record. But this downfall only means the team can improve. Whether successful or not, however, all junior varsity teams have their place in the athletic program. Under no circumstances should they be considered insignificant. Good luck next year, guys!

the program, two for boys and one for girls, it has many chances for success.

The boys' JV team took particular advantage of these chances. As the season progressed, the boys were looking better and better. Coach Johnson summed it up pretty well, "I think the JV Basketball team has had a very nice season. Some sophomore's have shown tremendous improvement. It's been a bright spot of the year to watch them." This improvement of the sophomores shows promise for this year's already excellent freshmen.

Yes, that's right, we cannot overlook the freshman, though they this, who knows what can happen when these guys are Seniors!

As it seems to go at Chagrin, however, not all the teams can be successful at the same time. This is the case for the JV girls team. Though they have struggled and tried their best, their record unfortunately does not reflect their dedication. Good luck for the future, girls!

Regardless of their records, all junior varsity teams exceed the requirements for hard work. This extreme dedication definitely earns a place for all the JV basketball players.

From skiing to sky-diving, from bowling to ballet, Chagrin Falls High School students have done it all. What? When?! Who knows, but somehow students get it done. At least one-hundred students in the school look abroad for athletics to be involved in. Many are also involved in more than one sport.

Certain sports received an over-

Other students have excelled to higher levels in their sports, too. One particular individual is Shannon Manning. Her whelming response of participation. These include: skiing, rock-climbing, horse-back riding, and pool. Some are surprising, whereas others may be expected.

Unknown to some, the Chagrin Valley and Greater Cleveland areas are homes to many equestrian farms. Several Chagrin Falls students, thirty, to be exact take full advantage of this fact. A few are state, and even national competitors. Kate Mottinger qualified for National Pony Finals in each of the 1990 and 1991 seasons. "Traveling to Ashville, N.C., and Lexington, Ky., let me see other styles of riding and other attitudes to-

Garfield Heights precision ice-skating team has competed in several national and international competitions. Someday the team may even make a showing at the Olympics as an exhibition sport.

These students may not receive letters for their participation. They deserve to get just as much credit, however, if not more. Their ventures give them something to do year round, which is quite commendable when combined with school work.

Thus, these two layouts are dedicated to those who have entered into a sport for life.

1. Courtney Munson and Jennifer Lind enjoy themselves while sailing through the reefs at Grand Cayman Island.
2. Shannon Manning and a friend display their team's award following a precision team ice-skating competition.
3. After free-falling for over one thousand feet, Chad Schron and Chesie Salyers smile with pleasure, while Jim Vickers and Sam Calabrese ponder the feat they have just accomplished.
4. Lana Volk smoothly guides her horse, Synergy, over a fence at the Chagrin Valley Polo Fields.

Athletics

What do bowling balls, climbing ropes, budding trees, field trips, and calculators have in common? Any guesses? They are all a part of Chagrin's diverse academic program. Of course, words such as "midterm, final, essay, test and homework" must be associated with any academics, but academics at Chagrin Falls High School includes much more.

In spite of our small size, Chagrin Falls High School once again this year offered a wide range of courses. The '92-'93 Course Selection Guide listed over 100 courses. These offerings included fifteen in math, eighteen in language, sixteen in English, ten in science, nine in social studies, and over forty-six separate class choices in business, arts, music, home economics and physical education. If this sounds like a lot for a small school with a relatively low enrollment, it's because it is a lot! (Let's see, that's 4.3 students for each course offered!) But it was all a part of providing for all of us a variety of choices for a variety of mind expanding needs. It's the one sure way that we were constantly stretched to the limit during this memorable, but definitely academic, school year.

ACADEMICS

EXPANDING OUR MINDS

A Word on Discipline

Chatting with Mr. Axner

WHICH ASPECT OF SCHOOL DO YOU LOOK FORWARD TO THE MOST?

Probably my work with student council because through them I have contact with all types of students and their different personalities.

DO YOU THINK DETENTIONS AND SATURDAY SCHOOLS ARE EFFECTIVE FORMS OF DISCIPLINE?

Yes, but the discipline depends on the individual. Some students have one detention and never have another again. Others get five or six, and end up in Saturday School. That's why we keep the handbook consistent and flexible, for those students who choose to act according to the rules, and to alert those who do not.

WHAT DO YOU BELIEVE TO BE THE MAIN DISCIPLINE PROBLEM WITH CFHS?

The biggest problem and hassle are the tardies. Our kids are late to everything. We should be called "Late High School." The use of dip, tobacco, or cigarettes has fortunately seemed to decrease, both on and off campus.

DO YOU FEEL THAT THE SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION SHOULD BE MORE, OR LESS, INVOLVED WITH STUDENTS' OFF-CAMPUS ACTIVITIES?

Our 24-hour policy for co-curricular activities is a good one, and the reason being is that those club members of S.A.D.D., Teen Institute, and Key Club are the students who truly represent Chagrin Falls High School. We can't do much for kids who don't participate in school activities; the way we deal with co-curricular activities now is strict enough, and there's not much more we can do.

ADMINISTRATION

While walking into the main office of C.F.H.S., the sounds that run the school can often be heard such as the buzz of the xerox machine, the humming of joyful secretaries, the clicking of typewriters, and the ringing of telephones. This place is a veritable catalyst in regards to the school, and of course, the office is busiest in the morning. Yet everything always seems to run smoothly, due to our secretaries, Mrs. Wyville, Mrs. Henck, Mrs. Sandmann, and Mrs. Hancock. Of course, Mrs. Materni is always showing up in the office for some reason or another, as she makes sure that the attendance is taken every period, and keeps a watchful eye over the parking lot in the beginning and end of each school day. These people all make the jobs of our administrators and guidance counselors easier and more organized. Where would Mrs. Lewis or Mr. Rydquist be without the help of Mrs. Hancock, or Dr. Trusso and Mr. Axner without Mrs. Henck and Mrs. Sandmann?

1. Kathy Colville and Nicole Seaman do their best to keep from receiving "jugs" from Mr. Axner.
2. Mr. Rydquist laughs with Jason Arnold as Jason lists his top college choices.
3. Mrs. Henck usually performs more than one important office duty at a time.
4. Dr. Trusso listens pensively as Mrs. McNatt discusses concerns about the upcoming spring musical.
5. Mrs. Wyville shows the new counseling secretary, Mrs. Hancock, "the ropes" of the counseling office.

ARTS AND BUSINESS

The CFHS Art and shop classes are unique compared to all other classes in the school. Mr. Olah, Mr. King and Mrs Chapin collectively make up an art staff that can not be beat. Projects in the shop classes with Mr Olah including making chairs and welding metal. The art classes worked on a number of projects ranging from drawing and painting to sculpting and plastering, under the careful instruction of Mr. King and Mrs. Chapin. Art Club also allowed students extra independent time to work on their projects on Saturday mornings. The art and shop program gave students an opportunity to express themselves through art, while creating masterpieces that they could collect or even use at home.

The business program led by Mrs. Murphy in her second year at CFHS gave students an insight to the world of business and economics. The classes taught in this program were marketing, typing, research, and accounting. The research and typing courses were also involved this year in training on the school's newly installed computer technology.

2. Aaron Zajackowski meets a deadline for his shop project.
3. Jill Trace and Nancy Bryan work on their marketing project.
4. Scott Shiever and Beth Alexander work on their pottery making skills. Their projects will be fired, glazed, and painted to be entered in an art show.
5. Jason Saran measures his architectural drawing ability in drafting class.

PHYS. ED.

What are uncomfortable, polyester, orange, and missing from the gym this year? The infamous gym shorts were one of the many changes which took place within the Chagrin Falls gym this year. The gym was also missing many upperclassmen due to the ability to "opt out." Upperclassmen, who competed in a sport could have a commons period instead of physical education every other day. Kate Mottinger said, "I miss Wem's stories and cross-country skiing, but with an extra commons period, I get more homework done--not!"

Another change in gym class was the many field trips. One field trip was to the Metroparks, where students exercised on the fitness trails.

The biggest problem this year in the gym was the floors. Many mysterious "bubbles" popped up due to water leakage during the summer months. The old, pegged, wooden floors could not endure the Cleveland "monsoon" summer. Even with the new field trips, the gym is still full of many interesting sports such as pickleball. Overall, except for the loss of the upperclassmen, physical education thrived this year in Chagrin Falls.

SCIENCE

"Take me to your .25 Liter," is one of the familiar "Buckle Jokes" often heard while handling different size beakers in chemistry. The science department, consisting of Mr. Buckle, Mr. Furst, Mrs. Schultz, Mr. Roberts, and Ms. Zawacki, believe in providing students with a "hands on" experience. These "hands on" experiences might include uncovering the hidden elements in "The Unknowns" in chemistry, breeding bacteria in biology, and feeling the kick back from a home made cannon in physics. In biology, students go seining every year in a river. Seining is the process of collecting insects from the bottom to determine if the water contains pollutants. The gathered information is then sent to the state. Nicole Zahka was happy with the results last year, because "the water supply seems to be safe and our class had fun while collecting the bugs and critters." Students may also compete in a bridge building contest for physics. The bridges are constructed from balsa wood and the one bridge that is the lightest while holding the most weight wins. The science department has also greatly improved with the addition of three advanced placement courses in biology, chemistry, and physics. Students can receive college credit for a score of three or higher on the A.P. test. With all these improvements and interesting projects, students can learn to enjoy science and possibly choose science for a career.

LANGUAGE

Not too many course offerings can offer visions of faraway places. Yet, this has been the intrigue and attraction of foreign language courses at Chagrin Falls. Each year one or more of the three languages offer one or more trips to native speaking lands. This year the Spanish and German classes planned a spring excursions to Spain and Germany, while last year the French enjoyed visitors from Chagrin's students. Reactions of students upon their arrival home is a universal one, "I wouldn't have missed it for the world!" What other classes can boast a visit to the Hofbrau Haus in Munich, or gazing from the exotic garden at the Roman Garden at Eze, France, or marveling at the Alhambra in Granada, Spain? What better way to experience the culture, the language, and the heritage of a people?

In addition to these excursion, some of the language teachers initiated the Free-net program which allowed students to communicate with other students through computer modem from such places as Montreal. Language learning is going high tech, and Chagrin students were there to experience the wonder of it all.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Extra! Extra! Man with big ears runs for president! Mr. Phillips, this year's Government teacher, was very concerned that young people were not voting. (For this reason he put off the election in class until October.) The candidates who ran in the Presidential election included Ross Perot, Bill Clinton and George Bush. Mr. Phillips was very worried that the negative campaigning of the 1988 election would happen again. If so, it would discourage young voters, as well as soon-to-be voters in his class. He thought that the most important reason for them to vote was that young people need "to make an attempt at making a difference." He wanted his class to become involved in the election and vote. To do this, he reserved a day where local candidates came and presented their platforms to the classes, reviewing their different platforms. They decided which, if any, of the platforms were most important. He wanted to know what his students thought was the most important agenda for the country. Mr. Phillips conducted a mock election for the whole high school and the whole Chagrin Valley Conference of schools. He wanted to compare our results with state and national statistics to show his students the difference between national and regional patterns. Very importantly, this year's government class had to learn to think for themselves instead of reading something out of an obsolete book.

ENGLISH

Writer's Block

"I just couldn't stand looking at that blank paper anymore, so I tore it up."-- Anonymous.

During the course of every school year nearly every student comes face to face with that awful feeling of having nothing to write about when an English assignment was due. Many times the result of writer's block were those blank pages our anonymous friend referred to above. Those papers may have wound up crumpled on the floor amid others, or filled with discarded words.

Over the course of the long year, no student could escape that dreaded English essay assignment. Many of us would put it off until the night before or even hours before that final deadline. For the student, there was no cheap cure. There was no bubble to fill in, or no scratches for answers on a worksheet. No, this was the real test, to actually formulate complete and coherent thoughts on a piece of paper and have them make sense! Often our pen would freeze to the paper, refusing to move, or our fingers would go rigid on the key board of our word processor, not allowing us to proceed. Some of the less obvious symptoms involved panic, fear, anger, procrastination, and compulsive behavior. Yet somehow we would conquer the affliction knowing full well that our grade depended on our overcoming our delay.

A number of student writers shared with us some symptoms of the disease. Some raided the refrigerator. Some talked on the phone. Some made paper airplanes. Others stared into space. Still another student played pool. Most people we talked to seemed to think that they didn't have anything important to say or were afraid what other people might think about what they had written. One student gave us the best answer for overcoming writer's block when he said, "When I know I've got to write, I just start writing about anything." But probably the most common cure for overcoming this disease was that inevitable grade that was always hanging over our heads. We overcame the block because we had to.

MATH

Zip Strip Surprise!

The "thirst for knowledge" continued through Chagrin's excellent math program again this year. Chagrin Falls teachers believe in pushing their students toward perfection, and the math department made no exception to the rule. With our math wizards Mr. Ohlrich, Mr. Tolleson, Mrs. Chase, Mr. Howell, and Mr. Lonchar, students could always count on those dreaded Friday quizzes and those wonderful daily "surprise" ZIP STRIPS. The objective of the zip strips was quite simple, the poor suffering math student has 15 to 20 seconds of total panic to complete 10 to 15 questions. What a way to keep math students on their toes! But as Chagrin student Will Vranich quoted, "Math is such an important part of the American education system, the teachers we have in Chagrin, I feel, fully equip us for future math courses and challenges."

1. Mr. Ohlrich philosophizes with senior student Justin Leusch about the latest math break throughs.

New York, New York!

In what other class could students get the opportunity to roam the streets of New York city, and visit places such as Fao Schwartz, Planet Hollywood, Hard Rock Cafe, or St. Patrick's Cathedral? A good guess would be none other than choir.

The choir department took a trip to New York City to give the students a chance to compete in a nation wide choral festival with schools from places such as Ohio, Cananda, and New Jersey. They left by bus in the spring of 1992 and departed for New York. They competed in a the choral festival in which the mixed choir, composed of junior and senior men and women, won a first place award. The woman's choir, composed of freshman and sophomore women, won a second place award.

In addition to their rigorous practice and performance schedule, the students found time to have fun and make this trip enjoyable and memorable.

5. Performing at a music festival in Hackensack, New Jersey, the choir came away with a first place finish!

STUDENT LIFE

BEYOND OUR WALLS

Sometimes we just had to push aside the books and get a life--a student life that is. But student life did not necessarily revolve around the bustling Chagrin students in the school's halls, commons, and restrooms. It's what went on beyond the walls of the school. And what went on would assure us of some of our best memories of this year, whether it was attending the big game, pigging out on pizza with friends, or cruising the streets in a four-wheel drive Jeep. It was definitely the best of times.

Of course the very best times had to be that long awaited summer vacation. Some of us were afraid to look at the calendar which only revealed the onslaught of another hectic school year. But once September rolled around we looked forward to Friday football and homecoming festivities. Who will ever forget that monumental blaze or that really 'hot' dance? Few senior or junior girls will forget the Powder Puff football rivalry, and no one who worked on the fall play will forget those opening night jitters. Our student life was filled with concerts, sporting events, dances, the movies, a few parties, and of course cars, where would we be without our wheels! Some of us just stayed home alone, by choice or by chance, curled up on the couch and vegged.

But whatever the case, we always found an opportunity to unwind from the drudgery of books and tests, and although we never really stopped thinking about tomorrow, many times our student life demanded that we let tomorrow take care of itself.

SUM^MER WINTER?

We have to admit Ohio isn't notorious for its weather. But in the summer, people do expect some form of sunshine...NOT. This past summer, if you all remember, had a record breaking cold streak that lasted the majority of the summer. When people brought in pictures of their summer, all of the pictures were of vacations in distant lands. Inhabitants of the Ohio region have learned quickly that the only way to enjoy warm, sunny weather is to travel to a distant state or country. Some of the places traveled to include: Bahamas, South Carolina, Canada, Colorado, Chicago, and France. If you were able to leave this dreary area, consider yourself lucky.

1. Jenny Stinson and Sara Tervo are life preserved and ready to ride the banana in the Bahamas.

GOT IT

Tiger Power?

The Kenston Voodoo doll met a fiery fate in one of the largest bonfires to ever burn on the Chagrin Falls premises. This year's Homecoming started on the Wednesday before the game, with an exciting parade. "The Mace Mobile", a Volkswagen Bug, was a new edition to the traditional parade. The parade became one of the largest in Chagrin Falls history, and many more faithful spectators were present. The parade was a great success that kicked off the spirited weekend. The renewed spirit was also shown with the attendance of the Chagrin vs. Kenston Homecoming football spectacular. This crowd was one of the biggest in history. The Tigers, although, did not respond as they should have, when they suffered a 30-0 loss to longtime, neighborhood rivals, the Kenston Bombers. The combination of the Tigers' off day and the Bombers' tremendous execution created the walloping upset. The Homecoming weekend was overall a huge success, and created a great tone for the rest of the year.

HO^{FALL}_MECOMING

The attendants were blue with nervousness when they walked the Tigers football field, but when things started to roll, the Homecoming events went very smoothly. Cold but cheerfull, this year's attendants were Freshman Dana Leary, Sophomore Kate Peterson, Junior Molly Lubs, Seniors Amy Exline, Kristen Worley and Jenny Dallas. Christina Weisenbach was crowned Homecoming queen during the Chagrin Falls, Kenston football game of 1992. The escorts were Scott Sandman, Matt Jacobs, Danny Bonilla, Casey Dustin, Mike Young, Jason Arnold and Tyler Davidson. After the ceremonies, the mighty Chagrin Falls Tigers were defeated by the fierce Kenston Bombers (0-30).

DANCIN' THE NIGHT AWAY

Every fall it is inevitable. The dateless underclassmen and the lively upperclassmen, intoxicated with spirit(s) merge in the Chagrin commons. Homecoming weekend did not end on Friday after the annual homecoming football game. On Saturday, October 26, the Chagrin Falls High School students gathered to dance the night away. The theme of this years dance was "under the stars." The dance was well attended as students from every class came. Since the price of admission was cheaper for couples, many new friends were found. Chagrin Falls High School students displayed their school spirit, and the dance was a great way to wrap up another exciting homecoming weekend.

On a cold October Sunday, the senior and junior women fought it out on the gridiron. The pregame hysteria was unlike anything Chagrin had seen in recent years. Locked in mortal combat in an intense hard fought game, the juniors finally triumphed over the senior girls 14-0. Scoring the junior touchdowns were Chris Direnzo and Nicole Esposito. Senior quarterback, Amy Exline nearly scored, but was turned back by a swarming junior defense. Even though the seniors lost, their cheerleaders put on a show that wouldn't soon be forgotten. Chagrin's crossdressers amused the crowd with their short skirts and water balloons, attacking the juniors with full force. The 1992 Powder Puff game may be history, but it also revealed that next year's juniors are really going to have their work cut out for them. -Frank O'Brien

ST. LOUIS MEET ME IN

On November 20 & 21 at 8:00 PM and with a special Sunday Matinee The Fall Footlighters presented this year's Fall Play, Meet Me In St. Louis. It was an excellent performance by all the cast players. They worked hard for almost two months to make sure that this program was a success. Meet Me In St. Louis took the the audience back to a time when life was slower and a whole lot easier. in 1904, America stood on the pinnacle of world power, Teddy Roosevelt was grinning his way to re-election, Albert Einstein was on the verge of formulating his theory of relativity ($E=mc^2$), and St. Louis, the gateway to the West for countless pioneers, was entering into the 20th Century in a grand way. The play took place in the household of Smiths in St. Louis where the excitement of the World's Fair was about to deal a severe shock.

Every week Mrs. McNatt the Director of this years performance handed out different quotes to inspire her cast. One of her favorites was, "It takes great passion and great energy to do anything creative. There must be a fine focus on detail and yet an overwhelming enthusiasm." Mrs. McNatt replied that she felt part of the audience on opening night and she felt the whole cast did a great job.

For all of us who saw it, this years fall play was definately an excellent performance, and one that will be remembered for years to come.

EXT^{GOING TO}REMES

Walking down the hall, there was obviously a difference in the styles worn by students this year. The tradition of Chagrin has somewhat changed from its "preppy" outlook to one of what will suit the individual. This year, students seemed to be wearing whatever was comfortable, while showing an expression of themselves. Although there was a strong fight by some to change, some styles never fade.

You could never go wrong by looking like you just fell out of the Gap. The original jean and sweater outfit could be found in many forms. Some of the biggest names were Levis, J Crew, Limited and once again the Gap. Their popularity was most likely due to their timeless classic look. Along with clothes, the hairstyles did not drastically change. The clean, long, natural look was definitely the way to go. However, this trend did not appeal to everyone.

For those who wanted to be or felt the need to be different, a definite trend began to spread. From combat boots, to black nails and chains, the "progressive" look quickly became established. These victims of the so called "individual movement" all ended up looking pretty much the same. Although they seemed to also like the same straight, long hairstyles, they found a way to deviate by dying their hair an array of colors.

Don't get me wrong, neither style was predominant or better. The most likely thing to find was a student who was comfortable. It is clear to say that some styles are changing but the traditional look is still going strong. Being different, changing or making your style, in Chagrin, everything was accepted!

MOVIN' ON

"I'll be moving soon." It's a phrase all too familiar to those of us who live in Chagrin. It's a fact of nearly everyone's life. Most of us have experienced it personally, and those who haven't, have friends who have moved away. In fact, four out of five of us will have moved at least once by the time we graduate from high school. Or to put it another way, for every one hundred of us who started out in kindergarten, only twenty of us will be left in Chagrin by graduation. An even more remarkable statistic from our Zenith poll of students has shown us that one in four of us have moved four or more times! That's really movin'.

A good example of a Chagrin student who has seen it all is sophomore Rachael Strauss. Rachael was born in Sacramento, California and then moved to Seattle, Washington; Troy Michigan; Chicago, Illinois; before coming to rest in Chagrin. Her experiences have taught her to be ready for anything, and thinks that Chagrin kids should be more open to new things.

With one in four Chagrin students having moved as many times as Rachael, making new friends has got to come easy. Most of the students that we surveyed said that Chagrin is a harder school system than where they came from and definitely more challenging, but at the same time they said that it is a school that's easier to adapt to. Whatever the case, there is not a student who hasn't been greatly affected directly or indirectly by moving. It's what makes us unique.

--Elizabeth Church

2. George Grib came to Chagrin this year from Moscow, Russia, for a one year stay.
3. Coming from Iran, Haleh Monsef lived in Bedford before coming to Chagrin.
4. Before coming to Chagrin, Kathy Colville lived in Toledo, Ohio and Louisville, Kentucky.
5. Kelley Christian was born in Charlotte, North Carolina and then has lived in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, Coral Springs, Florida, Miami, Florida, Chagrin Falls, Ohio, Sarasota, Florida, Ft. Myers, Florida, and now in Chagrin again.

Sixteen. It's just a number or an amount. It could be the number of coins in a kid's piggy bank, the percentage you got on your last Physics test, the number four squared, the speed your grandmother drives, or an age-the age that kids dream about, counting the years, days, hours, and minutes until they get to take out the car for the first time. A couple of things happen when you turn sixteen. After sitting through long driver's ed. classes, watching "The Last Prom" (feeling like you are going to lose the candy bar you just ate), driving with instructors whose feet seemed to be attached to the brake pedal and think that 10 m.p.h. is too fast for a beginning driver-on the freeway, and taking your test (maybe more than once), you are ready to face the roads as an experienced driver. You also get to see the number of gray hairs on your parents' heads double, the wrinkles start to form, and the money you worked for all summer wasted on gas. But you have freedom. "Free at last, free at last. Thank God Almighty, we are free at last."

JAILED

Home Alone

You tip-toe up the stairs an hour after curfew. You take a sigh of relief as you reach your bedroom. But just as you are about to cross the border line to safety, your mother flicks on the light and the dreaded words: "your GROUNDED", utter from her mouth. You try to reason, but to no avail, your fate is sealed, and you must learn to live with your doom.

On Friday night the reality of your grounding sets in as you retire to your dungeon. While friends made plans for the evening, you spent your time focusing on the T.V. Guide, confirming your date with the television. After two hours of Gilligan's Island reruns, you begin to wonder if an escape from this torture could be possible.

The walls seem to be closing in and you're having trouble breathing you've got to break out. By 10:00 mom and dad are snoring and the coast is clear. Dressed in black, you sneak out your bedroom window. Your FREE at last, only to remember - you forgot the keys to your car!

1. Chagrin football fans display their school spirit as they await the kickoff.
2. Stud of the evening, Brad Cornell attempts to show Kate Peterson and Lindsay Baumgartner a good time.
3. As a last resort, Chagrin Cinema offers a variety of movie choices.
4. Seniors, Christina Weisenbach and Tyler Davidson prove that a dance is a fun place to spend an evening.
5. Friday night is a time to spend with friends, as Kara Hultin and Kevin O'Malley express their joy of being in one another's presence.
6. The devoted Friday night basketball fans watch as their mascot entertains them.
7. Cam and his resembling date prepare for an evening of fun.

T.G.I.F. TIME TO UNWIND

As the day drags on, Friday brings the eternal question that gnaws on every high schoolers mind; "What is going on tonight?" This question is usually not answered until the night unveils.

At the beginning of the week, students anxiously await the weekend, with the need to unwind on their minds. Once Friday arrives there are a variety of ways to take advantage of those precious hours away from school. Mostly everyone was in search of a "good time".

Most students head to the high school to show their school spirit, by cheering at the football or basketball games. From freshmen to seniors many obstacles were faced by all. Many underclassmen found it difficult getting transportation to Chagrin events. Of course, there were those who claimed to have no problem finding a "good time". "The party is wherever Tom Cahill and Courtney Munson are at", boasted self-confident seniors. Whether the Friday nights were spent dancing the night away, or going to a movie with friends, or just catching up on lost sleep, Friday nights were often long awaited and much too short. Luckily, Saturday night offered another search for excitements.

"Dammit Jim, I'm just a doctor!" We must act quickly, we only have a few after school hours to interact among peers, give service hours, and build our bodies. Stretching our time limits while expanding our horizons is a part of club participation. From weight lifting club to S.A.D.D., from French club to Prism, participation is at its peak.

With thirty-six clubs and only four hundred and fifty students, this averages to twelve students per club. Many students participated in more than one club, filling their after school hours. Some clubs reached out to the community, such as Teen Institute, which visited the Middle School to discourage underage drinking and drug use. The academic clubs helped to create interest in its subject matter. The German Club visited the Hofbrauhaus in downtown Cleveland for German food and dancing. Students stretched their club participation to the limit, while having fun, helping others, and broadening their horizons in '93.

In '93 the Zenith staff stretched itself to the limit. Even with the giant tasks of finding pictures, creating layouts, and writing endless amounts of copy, the Zenith staff managed to meet deadlines and emerge with success, despite the lack of computers and broken printers. Mr. Balk thanks for your help, encouragement, time, patience, and humor. You taught us all about responsibility and made the bumpy roads a little smoother. Elena, you made balancing the books look easy. P.J. thanks for working so hard on the sports section and checking endless layouts. To all the other section editors thanks for being there and helping to meet deadlines. I'm looking forward to working with you next year. Finally, thanks to all the new members whose contribution made my job easier.

-Kate Mottinger, Editor

*To the Zenith staff I offer this rhyme,
Thanks for your hard work and time.
Many layouts were completed with care,
While disasters and deadlines were never rare.
Your help made the yearbook so much more,
Good luck to the staff in '94.*

The Zenith staff would like to thank the Booster Club, parent, professional, and ad patrons whose support made the '93 Zenith possible.

*We are so very proud of you,
Tim.
Love from Mom,
Dad, Amanda,
and Andrew.*

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Sunday-Thursday, 10-10

Friday and Saturday, 10-11

Well, we've come to the end. We've had to stretch, extend, broaden, expand, and nearly explode to get here; but we've done it. For some of us, we really felt fortunate, for it was truly the end, or at least the end of the beginning. When the final bell rang on that final class period, seniors spilled out onto the front patio, as they had so many times before, only this time leaving the trials and tribulations of high school behind. For others, those closing moments of school only brought another long awaited but all-too-short summer vacation, and the promise of yet more public education in September. But for all of us, that long awaited June day finally arrived when we relaxed, let down a little, and simply enjoyed. And why not? By the end of the year we were all stretched out. We had broadened our horizons, extended our relations, expanded our minds, and stretched the limits. What else could we ask for? What more could be asked of us?

Colophon

The 1993 Zenith was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks of Shawnee Mission, Kansas. Press run was 400 copies. Jon Fowley served as company representative. Leonard Balk advised the publication and Kate Mottinger edited the 1993 edition.

Body and caption copy is New Times Roman. Color usage is four point color. The laminated cover was designed by Kate Mottinger. The text paper is Bordeaux. The headlines used in the division pages and closing were created using Corel Draw on an IBM PS/2 computer. The layouts were created using Aldus Pagemaker. Zenith yearbooks sold for $32.00 and $35.00 personalized.

Special thanks to the Boosters, Mr. Leonard Balk, Mr. Jon Fowley, the entire Zenith staff, the Chagrin Booster Club and all of our ad patrons.
