ADVANTAGE

ADVANTAGE

Where the grass is

greener

Why does the grass appear greener on the other side of the fence? In the midst of schedules, classes, and tests, it is easy to take the ADVANTAGE of Chagrin Falls for granted. Criticism can become the norm and cynicism can become rampant. Obviously, we possess the books, teachers, classrooms, students, and tests that are a fundamental part of any high school. But when we search beyond the mandatory ingredients, we examine what makes CFHS fundamentally unique. What we do possess is an ADVANTAGE, and it is as obvious as the stripes on the tiger mascot. But what comprises this ADVANTAGE, from where does it stem, and what do we do with it?

Since we dwell within the suburbs, our grass is literally greener than the urban pavement. The rural setting of our school provides for much of our ADVANTAGE. Ex-Chagrinite Tim Conway once remarked, "If Disney had to create a town, it would be Chagrin Falls." The tree-lined streets of elegant century homes, the triangle and gazebo, cozy developments of larger homes, the surrounding quaint village shops, and of course the "cone-licker," or tourists, sauntering through crosswalks, all leave little doubt in the mind of the visitor that this is a special place. We acquired the ADVANTAGE by simply living here, some of us by accident and many of us with little choice in the matter.

But what exactly is the ADVANTAGE? It lurks within the "Nationally Recognized School of Excellence." Maybe it is a dedicated teaching staff where the average experience is twenty-one years. Or maybe it is our smallness that enables us to know each other on a first name basis. It could be the myriad of activities begging for our participation, or the lack of locks on lockers, or the open computer labs, or walking home late at night after a football game, or rolling pumpkins down a hill at 3:00 A.M., or just parking in the senior lot. Any way you look at it, the ADVANTAGE belongs to Chagrin.

Now that we have the ADVANTAGE, what do we do with it? In tennis, having the ADVANTAGE means being one up on your opponent. It is knowing that a win is within reach. All it takes is one decisive finishing stroke. Having the ADVANTAGE does not guarantee a victory or success. The ADVANTAGE is merely a stepping stone to reach a goal. It is up to us to close out the set and win the game!

Time Flies

Well, we finally got here - the class of '94 are now seniors of C.F.H.S. Whether forced by our parents, excited to see our friends, or determined to succeed, each one of us has walked through the foyer doors day after day and experienced something unique. It's hard to believe that three years of our lives have been spent in these classrooms and moreover, that this fourth year is the final chapter to our high school memories.

Ever since freshman year, we have been recognized as both an academically and athletically superior class. While our eyes reflect our intelligence, our school spirit reveals our enthusiasm. We've often been referred to as "the guinea pigs" of innovation. Not only were we the first class to take the ninth and twelfth by either relief, astonishment, or fear. Nevertheless, the preparation for spring break kept everyone sane (or perhaps insane) and of course, both OABR and prom became memorable evenings. As the end of each day drew us closer and closer to Sunday, June 12, our anticipation reached its height.

Believe it or not, the class of '94 will soon be wearing caps and gowns and accepting their diplomas. And whether you admired this institution or rebelled against its traditions, Chagrin Falls High School had an impact on each and every one of us.

Best wishes!

-Elena Grigera

Senior Class Officers: Chris Clark, Molly Lubs, and Jim Hendrix.

Seniors

grade proficiency tests, but several of us also had the opportunity to develop our computer skills by saving English essays on discs. But our senior year definitely stood out as each of us had to adapt to all the changes within the administration. Though all these factors help distinguish our class from preceding and future seniors, in reality, what made us different was our decision as a whole to have an unforgettable final year.

Though anxiety was felt by all as the counselors sent out our college applications and waiting became endless, there's no doubt that excitement was the prevailing emotion. Such events as homecoming, powder puff, and the pumpkin roll helped ease the tension in the air. And as the clock struck midnight on New Year's Eve, each individual was overcome

Above: Nocturnal cheerleaders, Alison Ramsey, Molly Lubs, Jennifer Zierold, and Kaly Harkins, prepare for their pre-Homecoming ritual of decorating the football players' houses.

1,2,3,4 . . . no not that kind of counting, we mean you. As Barney, the purple dinosaur might say "each of you counts in your own special way." Whether your talents lie in playing an instrument, smashing pumpkins, or dancing, all of your unique contributions make Chagrin Falls High School more diverse and successful in 1993-4.

This year's traditional events were as exciting as ever due to you, the student body. Powder Puff was a match between the experienced seniors and hard-working juniors. In the end, the seniors defeated (or should I say annihilated) the juniors with a score of 30-0. Another exciting event was pumpkin roll, which is something special to Chagrinites. Where else do students love to "borrow" pumpkins from farms so they can smash them and sled down a hill on the remains? Of course, your presence and energy made all the dances, homecoming, winter formal, and prom, exciting as always. The homecoming parade and bonfire were awe-inspiring and exhilarating as we observed a rival's mascot and a random pumpkin go up in flames. And who can forget Mortimer prancing down the sidelines entertaining the crowds during a game. Although Mortimer's overheated inhabitants changed weekly, they were important in maintaining school spirit. As we reflect back on our year of unique events such as OABR and pumpkin roll, we realized that without you none of this would have seemed as exciting or fun. All of your abilities combined into an exciting mosaic of diversity. These abilities enhanced life beyond our walls and made everyone count.

Where Has Summer Gone?

It's not fun
anymore.

The life of a Chagrin Falls student seems to revolve around the seasons. Fall begins it all...back to school life. For a while, it could almost be considered fun, seeing friends and sharing stories about the summer. But as soon as Mr. Lonchar gives his first zip strip or the first English paper is assigned, it all goes down hill from there. Seniors, looking forward to enjoying "senioritis", are surprised by the amount of work required for the college application process. They worry about who's going to what college and those dreaded college essays. What happened to those restful and relaxed summer days?

Soon fall rolls around and launches activities such as Homecoming, the bonfire, and the parade which help ease the students into the school year as well as boost school spirit. In October, students tough out the pain and the needles of the Red Cross blood drive and the bumps and bruises of sliding down Grove Hill on pumpkins. Soon, winter rears its ugly head. Everyone battles the second semester stress and counts down the days until winter break. Students, especially the girls, experience stress about who they will ask to the Winter Formal dance. The winter dullness also breeds extreme excitement for spring break. Spring brings trips to Florida and the foreign language trips. Upon the return from spring break, the topics of conversation are prom, OABR, the countdown until senior graduation, and the end of the year. Soon students face final exams and a break from school for three months. Then, the fall returns and the whole cycle starts over again.

Finnish Adventure

This summer I had a great opportunity to spend a month in Finland. In early June a Finnish girl, Katri Nieminen, came to stay with me for a month. We both had so many questions for each other that we were constantly talking and we quickly became friends. During the time she spent with me we went to Washington D.C. and went sailing on the Chesapeake Bay. The thing she had the hardest time with was the climate change. In Finland it is hot at 75 degrees, so our weather was almost unbearable for her. In July we were on our way to Finland where I was to spend a month with her family. The flight was almost 9 hours, we were with about 50 other exchange students, Finnish and American. When we arrived we had a 7 hour time change to adjust to and went more than two days without sleep. Finland is a very beautiful country, but it is also strange because for for two weeks during the summer there is 24 hours of sunlight. By the time I left, the nights were getting darker. We sailed for two weeks on the Baltic Sea through the thousands of islands that form the Archipelagos of Finland and Sweden. We stayed at the families "summer cottage" for several nights. There was no electricity or water and only five other homes on the island. With the other exchange students we later took a trip to St. Petersburg, Russia. It was great, except the poverty of the Russian people was depressing. I had so much fun experiencing the different cultures, that the month flew by and I did not want to leave. It was hard to say goodbye, but I still keep in touch with Katri and her family. It was a fantastic adventure and I would recommend it to anyone. Ihana! (wonderful)

Grin and Bear It

During the summer, I work for my father as a secretary. It is a pretty cushy job - free lunch, free transportation, private use of the ladies' room...or so I thought.

One day, I went to relieve myself in the luxurious bathroom. I chose the handicapped stall because it is always the cleanest and most spacious. As I minded my own business, the door to my stall suddenly opened.

Failing to notice that the stall was occupied, a very proper businesswoman in a well-tailored suit rushed into the stall, lifted her skirt, and proceeded to come towards my lap. Because all of this happened within a few seconds, I was able to exclaim, "Wait!" before she sat on me. She blurted, "Oh, I'm so sorry!" and ran out of the stall in sheer embarrassment.

Maybe I'll

Right about now, we teenagers are starting to believe the dreadful theory that money really does NOT grow on trees. Ok, so how do we get some?

The first, and most favorable way of getting money is to simply ask our parents for some. However, as we get older, they are forming this ridiculous notion that we should earn our own. So, some of us have broken down and gotten the long-avoided part-time job (which crushed our image that a job was just a synonym for "sit around all day and get paid").

In learning the ropes of a new job, we all experience those embarrassing initiation mistakes. For example, those in food service can't help but get everyone's attention by dropping the loudest object in the restaurant; those in retail have to hold back smiles when asked for their "honest opinion" about an outfit a customer selects. Sara Tervo, who works at

The Gap in Beachwood, has also experienced her own share of mistakes. "A couple of times I have opened the dressing room doors, thinking they were empty, and walked in on people changing." A universal problem with nearly all jobs, are the infamous register functions (which are guaranteed to work for every employee except you).

These situations are frustrating enough to tempt any logical person to quit and return to the world of unemployment; however, this little voice inside our heads (which strongly resembles our mother's) reminds us that we have to keep our job. Sure, the hours may be grueling, the work tedious, and our fellow staff members moody, but the underlying savior in our job is our salary. Besides, if the pros don't eventually start to outweigh the cons, one can always revert to the initial approach: Hey mom, can I borrow some money? I promise I'll pay you back soon...

Alison Ramsey

Clad in orange and black, anxious students could hardly wait to get Homecoming festivities underway and show their school spirit.

Beginning October 20, a parade, pep rally and bonfire showed our school spirit. Students waited in the Middle School parking lot with anticipation for the parade to start. Once the parade was underway students recognized the fact that most students of Chagrin Falls participate in fall sports because the crowd watching the parade was minimum. Upon arriving at the stadium the cheerleaders performed for the crowd and all the team captains spoke. Greg Patronite and Paul Phillips then led the entire stadium of people carrying a dummy of a Chardon football player to back field for the lighting of the bonfire.

The dummy was placed at the top of the fire and everyone cheered with anticipation of a successful football game that Friday night.

On Thursday in the late hours of the night, the cheerleaders decorated (some would say vandalized) the houses of all the football seniors to show school spirit. This spirit carried on throughout the day of Friday. Bundling up for the game against Chardon Hilltoppers, the students huddled with friends to keep warm as they awaited the crowning of the queen, Molly Lubs. The other senior attendants were Jenny Stinson and Sara Tervo. The

The festivities continued of Saturday with the dance from 8:30p.m. to 12:00p.m. That morning the Senior Class Student Council members turned the Commons into a Pumpkin Patch supporting the theme of "The Pumpkin Roll Ball".

All decked out Chagrin students redeemed their tickets and danced to the music by Scott Barr. As the dance came to an end, students carried out their post-dance plans. When the night drew to a close, students hugged, kissed or dodged their dates, and dragged themselves into bed, exhausted from the week's excitement.

Seniors Prevail

One
More
Time

On the cold brisk day of November 7, 1993, the senior women of '94, demonstrated their athletic ability. The senior class has proven to be a powerhouse in the annual powderpuff game. Throughout the two years of play, the class of '94 was undefeated, scoring a total of 44 points. Also, they gave up no points on defense in two shut-outs.

The success was the result of all the hard work. Both the junior and senior teams had many long practices in the cold rainy weather. Senior Shannon Manning replied, "the coaches took it seriously which made it more competitive and fun." The two teams took the game very seriously with many players showing their competitiveness and team spirit. The junior quarterback was Mindi Sanders, who could not get past the overpowering senior defense. The senior team had two quarterbacks.

Erin Eichler had long direct throws and Nicole Esposito had the speed and agility. Along with the offenses, both defenses were good and a very important part of the entire game. Senior Kaly Harkins replied,

"it was a great way to spend time with everyone in your class. Everyone worked together and it made the game a lot of fun." One of the seniors favorite plays was towards the end of the game, when the senior defense sat down and the juniors still lost yardage. Kate Peterson said, "even though we lost we still had a great time." Both teams showed their rivalry, but the cheerleaders also had fun. Clay Bartel remarked, "we had fun cheering and even more fun competing with the junior guys." A good time was had by all with no major injuries or catastrophes. The senior class has one thing to say, "better luck next year juniors."

Becky Hall

Coaches

The junior and senior coaches were a vital part of the 1993 Powderpuff game. Both teams' coaches made up plays, contributed many hours of their time and put up with many complaining girls. Senior coach, Jack Cornell, comments, "Without the coaches, the teams would have been nothing." Although many of the coaches had just finished a three hour football practice of their own, they still managed to put forth much effort. All of the coaches were an invaluable part of the teams. Both the junior and senior girls appreciate their hard work and effort.

Opposite page top: Senior, Chris Drenzo shows the junior team how to run, as she does it for yet another touchdown. Opposite lower: Junior Kate Peterson tries to get past the senior defense, but like the rest of the team, is unsuccessful. Top of same page: The senior team gathers around the scoreboard, which reveals the final score, 30-0. The senior class dominated the entire Powderpuff game. Top right: Some of the senior girls show their spirit as they huddle for a picture to remind them of the victorious day. Left: Senior cheerleader Clay Bartel leads his team and fans in a cheer. One of the best parts of the whole day was seeing the rowdy cheerleaders. Above: Senior coach Craig Schantz wants it to be heard that the senior powderpuff team were the winners. It could never be loud enough.

Coming to America

The halls of Chagrin Falls high School were filled with some not-so-familiar faces during the 1993-1994 school year. Many of these faces were from a variety of places in the world, varying from Germany to Australia.

One of the latest additions to the school was Petti Erkkola from Finland. Petti came to the United in late August, but came to Chagrin from Westlake in early December. Her first impression of the United States was "it was hot!" Petti could only think of a few differences between the US and Finland. One of the biggest differences she found was the dating scene. "Everyone in Finland just goes to the parties and then meets up in the middle of town later that night. No one goes to the movies or dinner like they do here." One difference Petti liked about America is the fact that the guys pay. In Finland the girls pay for their part and the guys for theirs. Petti also found school to be different. In Finland high schoolers have more freedom than American students do. In Finland, between every class, which lasts for an hour and meets every other day, the students have a fifty minute break, where they are able to leave campus and do as they please. Petti's favorite thing to do was to go shopping. The one thing Petti does not like about American schools is the hour at which they start. She said, "It just starts way too early." In her free time, Petti enjoyed swimming on the school swim team, writing letters, and of course like every American girl, she enjoyed talking on the telephone. Overall Petti thought the people were very friendly and made her stay in the United States very enjoyable.

Along with Petti, Laura Korpikallio was also from Finland. Laura was asked what her first impression of the United States was and she replied, "The people are the thing I think of first. They were so friendly and helpful." Laura also found differences between Finland and America. One of the most noticeable differences was that of athletics. Laura said in Finland students go to school until about 4:00, so there is no time for sports. People participate outside of school, but there aren't any school sponsored teams. Another difference Laura found was the number of students that worked. She replied, "There are not any jobs in Finland, so the amount of students that work are limited." In her free time Laura liked to go out with her friends and party. She really liked her stay in the United States, and would love to come back.

Another new face in the high school was Sabine Weckauf from Germany. When asked what was her first impression of the United States, Sabine replied, "It's cute!" Sabina could only think of a few differences between Germany and the United States. The biggest one was the food. She could not believe the amount of junk food here. She loves almost all of it. Another difference was the price of everything. Sabine was overwhelmed at how inexpensive everything was --especially clothes! In her free time Sabine enjoyed playing volleyball on the Varsity team and going to the mall. One thing Sabine did not like was the time school started. She replied, "I am not used to waking up at 6:00 o'clock every morning."

Laura Korpikallio and Petti Erkkola both natives from Finland experiencing wonders of America at the winter formal.

On weekends in Germany, Sabine said "We go to parties, discos and bars..." Sabine was not accustomed to seeing teenagers drive. In Germany the legal driving age is 18, so she is not used to having her friends drive. Sabine, like the others liked the United States very much. She thought the people were very kind and welcoming.

Bablee Rohera was from India. Her first impression of the United States was, "The people here are very, very casual, and the youngsters have a lot of freedom." Bablee found so many differences between the United States and India, that the only thing she could say was, "EVERYTHING!" The whole way of life is very different from India. Bablee liked all the people here, and found almost all of them to be very helpful. In her free time, Bablee belonged to science club, she joined art classes at the Valley Art Center, and she enjoyed swimming. On the weekends in India Bablee went on Sunday picnics, movies, shopping, and going out with her friends. Bablee had so much fun in the United States she could not believe it.

Akiko Nishida was from Japan. She was so excited to be in America she could not think of anything to describe her first impression. Like most of the other people, Akiko found the food and school to be very different. In her free time Akiko enjoyed going out with her friends and learning about the American culture and all the customs. Akiko agreed with all the others that the people were very courteous and willing to help in any way possible. Akiko really made the most out of her stay in the United States by trying different things and doing everything she possibly could.

The final new student at Chagrin this year was Rafa Zaim from Australia. Rafa's first impression of the US was, "the people were very friendly and accepting." In her free time Rafa enjoyed writing letters and poetry, shopping, going to parties with her friends, ice-skating, and just hanging out. Due to uncontrollable circumstances, Rafa had to return home sooner than planned. One of her most memorable events was the annual junior senior powderpuff game. Rafa enjoyed the people and the times she spent in the United States and said it was a wonderful experience.

We, indeed, were fortunate this year to have so many diverse students share with us their cultures and friendships. We wish them well.

The Night of the Pumpkin Roll

T'was the night of the Pumpkin Roll and all through Chagrin, Everyone was stirring, all ready to begin.
The pumpkins were stacked in the trucks with great care.
The seniors and juniors were excited to be there.
I was all nestled and snug in my bed.
While visions of pumpkins smashed in my head.
With seniors in sweats, and juniors the same,
I had just lain to sleep and 2 o'clock came.
Then out on Grove Hill there arose such a clatter.
Grandfather sprang from bed to see what was the matter.
Away to my room he flew in a leap,
Threw open my door to find me asleep.
He woke me up, and I realized, oh dear,
I slept through my alarm - oh the nightmare of the year.
With pumpkins in my arms, I ran as I flew,
To find everyone gone, even the parents had left too.
Only Officer Voss and a few cops were around,
With smashed pumpkins at the bottom in a large mound.
There were recycling bins and bread crates galore,
But I was too scared to go down anymore.
I threw my pumpkins and did not shed a tear,
And that is how I had my own Pumpkin Roll, junior year.

Who would think that the quiet town of Chagrin Falls could produce vandals that could commit such an act against the community? It's not murder, arson, or grand theft (well, maybe it is); it's the pumpkin roll. This time honored tradition was successfully carried out again this year on November 10th. The pumpkins arrived at 1:30AM on trucks driven by Geoff McGuire and Paul Phillips. The crowd of cheering seniors and juniors all gathered on Grove Hill at 1:35AM, clad in helmets and other protective gear in preparaton for the potentially painful slide down the hill. Parents and various onlookers gathered to capture the event on film. The roll was on its way, signified by sounds of splattering and the aroma of smashed pumpkins which filled the air. Some used sleds, others borrowed recycling bins, and some used various body parts to break their fall. Most escaped without injuries, but the major casualties of the roll were a broken tail bone and a few scrapes and bruises.

At 3:00AM, the cops declared the 1993 Pumpkin Roll officially over, but there were a few who did sneak in extra slides. Soaked in pumpkin juice, it was time to head home and make way for the street cleaners. By 6:30AM, the streets were clean and students were dragging out of bed to start the day. At 10:00AM, the commons was dead quiet. There was no Tecmo bowl or ping pong being played, and the only thing that could be heard was the gentle snore of those who attended the pumpkin roll.

The Battle Rages Onward

Sure, there's obvious biological differences between the male and female species. But what ultimately sets them apart would have to be the everyday difference of opinions towards life. For example, when the average male comes home from school, he doesn't rush to the television to see the latest news on "General Hospital's Jagger and Karen. Nor does the average female check the local listings for game times. Although, lately more guys are chiming in on the soap opera gossip, while the girls are reliving the injustice of last night's game.

There are certain activities at the high school allotted for role reversal. For Winter Formal, the girl gets to experience the nervous breakdown in deciding who to ask. In Powder Puff, the girls wear the jerseys while the guys cheer them on in those pleated skirts. Aside from these events, the division still rests on everyday contrasts. Of course, exceptions exist to these examples of how these sexes differ; but one quality that is definite to both sexes is the mood swings. Whether or not they are biologically induced, they, along with our tone of voice, facial expressions, and body language, help us to annoy one another.

With all these differentiations, relationships are nearly impossible and conflict is nearly everywhere, making the battle of the sexes rage onward.

Are You Male or Female?

1. You haven't shaved in four days. The stubble can be considered:

- a. attractive
- b. gross

2. When you feel insecure, you turn to your best friend and say:

- a. nothing
- b. "Do I look fat?"

3. The age that you realize that junk food will devastate your body is:

- a. 35
- b. 14

4. Your athletic support requires:

- a. one cup
- b. two cups

SCORING: a=1 point

b=2 points

0-4 points: Congratulations, you're a male. This means that you have a greater lean-muscle-to-fat ratio, have a better chance of growing facial hair, and no cellulite.

5-8 points: Congratulations, you're a female. This means that you have a better chance of living longer, have the choice of wearing a skirt or pants in public, and pay less on your car insurance.

You Can't Take

Directed by Mrs. Jody McNatt, this year's fall play, "You Can't Take It With You", had its first performance on Friday, December 3, 1993. The show was at 8:00 P.M., followed by another evening performance on Saturday and a matinee on Sunday. The assistant directors were Cheserae Salyers and Nicole Zahka.

The play took the stage by storm with its witty, humorous characters and romantic story. The cast included such veteran actors as Steve Salvador, Jennifer Zierold, Gretchen VanLente, Jon O'Hara, Diana Minneci, and many more. This year, it was also joined by those making their stage debuts, such as Tony Lupone, Clay Bartel, and Will O'Keefe. The play follows the plight of two young people of very different backgrounds,

Tony Kirby and Alice Sycamore, to overcome the social barriers and maintain an innocent love. Although a deeply moving story, it was enlivened by the humor of many supporting actors. There's the numerous experiments with dynamite performed by Mr. Sycamore and Mr. DePinna, the exquisite ballet of Elsie, and the overwhelming charm of Penny Sycamore. This combination of humor and exquisiteness provided for a very entertaining evening. The atmosphere and performance itself were as near to perfection as can be desired, and this memorable performance will be a hard act to follow in the years to come.

Traditions

On Saturday, December 11, 1993, the Chagrin Falls cheerleaders sponsored the annual Winter Formal dance. This year's theme, "Under the Sea" brought a certain magical ambiance to the otherwise bleak commons, not to mention adding an overwhelming amount of aqua marine to the facility. One of the most exciting aspects of this dance is the crowning of the Winter Formal King. This year's King, Jim Vickers, was not only presented with the traditional crown, but with the thematic sceptor, as well. It seems as though this also signified a personal victory for

Jim: "It felt good to beat Clark, even though it came as no surprise."

As students stumbled out of the dance around 11:30, claiming to be "all danced out", they headed to the next and equally traditional phase of the evening, the parties. Everyone is quick to change out of the nice looking, but impractical, dresses and suits, and into the blue jeans and tee shirts. The final success of the dance was that the decorations were promptly removed a few weeks later, as opposed to them ringing in the new year.

Far right: Cutest moment of the night: Kaly Harkins and Scott Wahl dance nose to nose.

"What if he says no?" This is probably the biggest question in a girl's mind when it's time to ask that certain guy to Winter Formal. We, as girls, have taken for granted all the preparation involved in asking someone on a date. We are quick to tease guys about being shy when asking a girl out, but it is only when the tables are turned that we realize what a task it really is.

The mind goes into overdrive pondering all the possible outcomes of the fatal moment. Then, in an instant, it is over. At this point, you're either euphoric or crushed, but either way, you are definately glad it is over!

All that alone is the mere preparation. Now comes the actual night. Of course, we start getting ready approximately two to three hours before the time our date is scheduled to arrive; only to learn that it took him only twenty minutes to get ready before we found him on our doorstep. Then, after 1001 pictures by the various families, we're off.

After you take your date to dinner, you arrive at the infamous high school commons for the dance. The girls are quick to complement one another on dresses, while the guys huddle and discuss who knows what (hopefully not a group lynching of all the mistakes we rookies have made so far in the date). The dance itself is not the main event, rather the time where everyone finally can relax! Once everyone is dancing, all of the emotional trauma is forgotten, and the evening is a success!

Role Reversal

What does it mean to be a "cut above the rest"? Lets get philosophical and think of academics as making a series of notches into the tree of life and education. (Not to get sappy or anything... sorry, bad joke). This series of steps or notches are the gradual improvement of an education. To insure an education, Chagrin has provided many valuable steps along the way. The first notch begins in elementary school where basic skills in subjects, such as creative writing and math, are emphasized, while extra activities, such as music are encouraged. The next notch is carved out in middle school, which provides students with the opportunity to get ahead in their education, if they so please. For example, it provides students with an early opportunity to begin a language or math. Most importantly, middle school forms all of the elementary basics into a solid foundation, upon which one can embellish. Chagrin Falls High School possesses an advantage, which over the years has provided students with higher steps in the educational process. Some of the changes such as the addition of several advanced placement classes, have kept the students challenged. Overall, it is the Chagrin students who improve their own education with their intelligence and motivation. The freshman proficiency tests support this fact because a higher percentage of Chagrin students pass each year than other schools. Also, ninety-two percent of Chagrin students continue with their education after high school, so obviously they have been inspired. Although a Chagrin Falls High School education gives you an advantage with which to succeed, the next notch in the tree is still pending and we must continue to stay ahead, or should we say . . . "a cut above the rest?"

Summer reading. What else is there to say- other than boring, tedious, and seemingly pointless? You always promise yourself at the end of the school year that you will start at least one book right away. Then, either that book takes ten weeks to read, or you just rule out the notion altogether. Either way, on the night before school starts you spend those last moments of freedom pouring over the social and political themes of the books you have not read. Hoping for a savior, you have purchased the ever-existing and benevolent Cliffs Notes. However, panic overwhelms you as your bed is now covered with unfamiliar masterpieces, recognizable only by their titles and nothing more. A feeling of fatigue consumes you, as you are forced to use your mind for decisions other than how much suntan lotion is needed in order to avoid sunburn, or how to calculate the exact minute at which you must leave a party in order to make curfew.

MAKING THE GRADE

Catherine Eaton stated, "Summer reading is just another technique to help me fall asleep at night."

The English teachers never fail to give this assignment, demanding that the students involuntarily use the burned out forces within their overused brains. The best part is that the supposedly well thought out and deeply researched assignment is the teacher's first impression of what type of writer you are. So basically, you start the year off at the bottom of the teacher's "under achiever list". No problem, you're in good company; each student suffers through the same trauma each year. I guess the best solution in order to preserve our mental exertion would be to eliminate summer reading; but break tradition? Not!

Above: Clay Bartel strives to convince the class that Mrs. Lewis made an error in his schedule and that he really is supposed to be in A.P. English, not regular English!

Below: Mr. Ponikvar uses his "artistic ability" to illustrate an important idea, although his drawings look like unrecognizable modern art.

Two Chagrin senior women have reached out beyond the walls of Chagrin Falls and are participating in an up-and-coming radio station. Debbie Lenson "Spanky" and Carey Norton "Dutch" are disc jockeys of 88.3 WKHR- "Your only alternative." The radio station just got a bigger antenna this summer, so the radio station can be heard throughout Kenston and by good stereo systems in the Chagrin area. There are hopes to expand this radio station to all of the Cleveland area. This job in Broadcasting Arts has given them a chance to excel in areas not available in Chagrin Falls and will prove to be a great help to them in the future.

Left: Kevin Walsh, better known as the class clown, argues his opinion. Little does he know that no one takes him seriously, except the teacher.

Kate Clevenger is presently involved in an internship with the Sierra Club, an environmental activist group nationwide. The committee she is most involved in is with population. Her project entails making a survey and distributing it to ten schools in the Greater Cleveland area. A random selection of the senior class will be taking the questionnaire. From the compiled results the Sierra Club will know the importance placed upon environmental issues and population matters in area high schools. Their goal is to enhance the awareness to teachers and students about the problems in the environment. They will also donate materials to teachers to give them some environmental lesson plan ideas.

Kate works on this internship for ten hours a week, mainly Tuesdays and Thursdays. She goes either to her office at Planned Parenthood in downtown Cleveland, to libraries, or to the schools she is surveying.

Kate feels this internship will help her prepare for college. She has become more of an independent thinker and she has had to budget her time with school, work, the internship, and, of course, time with her friends. She feels all seniors should have a chance to get involved in something like this. Yet, she says they will risk a part of their senior year because it takes a lot of time and dedication. She said, "You risk exclusion, but learn to be self-sufficient."

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Have you ever been asked a question during a social studies class and you have no idea what the answer could be? I am sure this has happened to almost every student at one point or another. I have compounded a few ways to handle this predicament. First, you can always play dumb and act as if you did not hear the teacher ask the question. They will get so perturbed that they will quickly move to another student. You can always play the intellectual, which means using big words in your answer: "I denounce the agitation and variation of this concrete hypothesis based on logic created for fundamental values." You will have no idea what your saying, but the teachers will get a big kick out of it. And if worse comes to worse, you should pray that a social studies brain is sitting close by for some help. And in a final fit of desperation, a quick dive under the table should suffice. Although these reactions are mostly fictitious, it has happened before and can be prevented by studying.

Throughout time scientists have been trying to discover what they do not know. Here at Chagrin, students try to discover the answers to these simple questions: "Why am I here?", "Will I need this in my future?" and "When is the next field trip?"

Field trips have been known to highlight the science department activities. Anxious and enthusiastic science teachers always seem to be planning the next venture. Among the more popular trips in Senior Science Seminar and Biology 1 is the annual seining adventure. Groups of about five students are required to get as many different little critters from the river as possible, and figure out how clean the water is. The figuring out is the boring part. The fun part is getting down and dirty in the slimy water without falling in. But some of the students who have gone seining know that falling in can be hard to avoid at times. An enthusiastic Brad Shellgren declares, "seining is my life," while Shannon Manning believes "seining is more fun than a double period."

DISCOVER THE UNKNOWN

This is the first year for this class and it is taught by Mr. Furst. In Senior Science Seminar there are no books and barely any homework. The class focused on "hands on" science and although it is a senior biology class, it wasn't as difficult as AP Biology.

Classes such as this sparked a larger interest in science this year because students didn't have to spend as much time studying, and therefore had more time to enjoy nature. It also gave the seniors a chance to breathe after having three hard years of the other science classes such as biology, chemistry, and physics. About thirty seniors took the two classes and enjoyed the challenge of studying science the way it should be studied--up close.

Shannon Fagerholm is involved in a cosmetology intern program at Mayfield Vocational High School. In two years she will learn everything she needs to know to get her beauticians licence. Shannon must have 1500 hours before she can get her licence. She spends half of her day in the salon where she learns hands on skills such as hair styling, coloring, facials, and nails. Shannon then spends the other half day in the classroom learning all the different things about beauty. Learning to be a beautician is hard at times because she has to learn new things that people don't expect a beautician to know. Shannon also takes business English.

Shannon has wanted to be a beautician ever since she was little. Getting to learn new things that she never knew before, is one thing Shannon likes about this program. Shannon is serving this internship so that when she graduates from high school she will have a job she can rely on. She says that interning is hard but that she really enjoys it.

Here's a lowdown on the math department for all of you underclassmen... and for the Seniors, a way to remember those crazy teachers.

Mr. Howell- Everything in this class relates to golf. Make sure you're up to par - literally. In the winter, wear a wool sweater and bring your coat because it's guaranteed that the windows will be open. Famous Quote: "But in Texas, we do everything in a big way."

Mr. Lonchar- "Lonch" is not an everyday teacher... somehow he'll find a way to make your life miserable. From zip strips to humiliation in class, he can definitely drive someone up (or into) the wall... (oops!) the wall. One noteworthy fact - he is a perfectionist so do not mess up anything in his room. Famous Quote: "Two minutes! Two minutes!"

ADDING EUP

Mr. Tolleson- Don't be late to this class or you'll spend the afternoon in jug. You might even see him there if he gets caught up in traffic. Watch out for his crazy computer programs with sound effects and all of his analogies. Do not use a calculator when he says not to! Famous Quote: "Shake your heads so I know you're alive!"

Mr. Ohlrich- Here is a taste of a true college professor - down to earth and focused on math. He deserves the shiny apple on his desk. Teamed up with his student teacher Mr. Kurtz, the brain waves just flow from the classroom, and a math aura can be felt as students walk through the halls.

There are many students at Chagrín who excel in a certain subjects. One of these students is Jay Neidermeyer, who excels in mathematics. Where most Seniors should be in Trigonometry, Jay has surpassed A.P. Calculus B.C. This year Jay did not take math because there were no courses available, and he has had enough of math for the time being. Anyone who has had such a great background in math deserved a break. Jay plans to attend college as a business major.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays, he works at Beechmont Country Club as a ground keeper. As ground keeper, Matt has to ensure the land of the area is healthy and well-groomed. Matt plans on using this excellent experience in his career some day.

1. Brye Gerhardt, a Solon native who joined the Tiger tradition, warms up his trumpet before the Homecoming parade.
2. Sara Snyder, the captain of the dance squad, shows her talent during the Homecoming half time.

Doubled in size since last year, the band is now drumming to a new beat. They have thirty-five additional members, mainly consisting of freshmen. Due to all the new members, they ordered new uniforms to give a fresh look to this group. They travelled to Belville, Ohio for five days to learn new music and different formations. In response to these changes, Jill Trace stated: "It is more exciting this year with more people."

Every Wednesday night, under the lead of Ms. Sickinger and field commanders Jill Trace and Peter Breitzman, the band practices for two hours. Jill also feels that "So many freshmen are really talented, which helps us perform much better this year than ever before."

The band also does their best to raise spirit at the games. Chris Bell is notorious for starting the wave and other band chants. Carrying on the tradition of Stephan Ruppel-Lee, Chris enthusiastically invites the crowd to join in on the many spirit songs and chants.

PLAYING UP A STORM

However, this overzealousness proved to be a problem at band camp, for he cracked his head open while playing an exciting game of basketball.

The dance squad has also turned over a new leaf this year. They have twelve members this year, half of which are freshman. Under the lead of Captain Sara Snyder, the dance squad adds a great touch to the talented band. During halftime, the crowd often exhibits restlessness while waiting for the second half to start. Thanks to the dance squad, this restlessness is channeled into spirit, for their smiling faces encourage participation.

The band and dance squad, more talented than ever, increases our student body spirit while giving our parents a chance to get involved in student activities, as well.

Tag! Bonjour! Hola! How many of you know what these words mean? How many students have gone through at least two years of a foreign language and still don't know exactly what they are saying? How many people just take the class to get into college? Here is a fun quiz of fun phrases from the three different languages to test how well you would do in another country. The answers are at the bottom. Espanol: 1. ¿Dónde esta el baño? 2. La cuenta, por favor. 3. ¿Cuánto cuesta? 4. Querria un Coca-Cola grande. 5. ¿Esos son los jeans de Bugle Boy que te llevas? Deustch: 1.Wo ist das WC? 2.Die Rechnung, bitte! 3.Wieviel kostet das? 4.Ich hätte gern eine Cola. 5.Trägst du Bugle Boy Jeans? Francais: 1.Ou est la toilette? 2.Le dishon, s'il vous plait. 3.C'est combien? 4.Je voudrais demander une grande Coca. 5.Mettez-vous de Bugle Boy Jean?

FRANÇAIS DEUTSCH ESPAÑOL

Well how do you think you did? Now let's see how you rate. If you scored a perfect five you are a language master. You would be very successful overseas. If you scored a four you are known as a semi-perfect language master. If you received a three, you had better take a dictionary with you. If you scored a two, you had better take someone who got a five because a dictionary might not be enough. If you scored a one, stay in your hotel and don't speak to anyone. If you scored zero just stay home and don't waste your time and money, or just go to England.

by Margo Meter

Answers: 1.Where is the bathroom? 2.Check Please? 3.How much is this? 4.I would like to order a large Coke? 5.Are those Bugle Boy Jeans you are wearing?

Brooke Jenkins, a Junior, has been participating in a cosmetology intern program this year. She spends her whole day at Mayfield Vocational High School learning more about the wide world of beauty. She has been able to learn how to work with hair, fix acrylic nails, and everything else a beautician is expected to know. Brooke works on different manikins to get the experience she needs. Half of Brooke's time is spent in the salon learning with hands on experience. The other half of the day is spent in the class room learning from a book. Brooke is involved in this internship because she shows a great interest in this field. She also feels that because of what she is doing, she will have a job to fall back on when she gets out of high school.

Often people were pleasantly surprised when they passed the music building and heard the harmonious voices of our choir. But this was to be expected since the choir had slated an ambitious schedule of competitions and concerts this year.

The choir started off to the year on Spirit Day, singing "The Star Spangled Banner" in front of the whole school district. The choir was not only appreciated but also respected for showing their enormous amount of school pride. The students received a fantastic opportunity to work together with the middle school choir classes to make a fun and enjoyable performance for all. From then on their schedule was filled with not only concerts, but with competitions as well. A few key events were: the C.V.C Choral Festival at Solon, the NorthEastern Ohio competition, caroling in the village lighting ceremony, and of course the greatly anticipated trip to Disneyworld! Choir member Molly Floto said "I was really excited for the Disneyworld trip, however I had to participate in fundraisers that weren't very exciting. Soon after spring break the choir boarded the buses and headed down to Orlando, Florida, to compete and for the time of their lives. Sharing rooms with up to four pals was no doubt an unforgettable experience in itself, not to mention how much fun it was to hanging out and spending time at Disneyworld.

The year certainly proved to be active and exciting for both the mixed choir and the women's choir, where director Mrs. Kleinman says "every student is important."

What comes to your mind when the words "Mr. Wem" are spoken-nothing else but his stories! He is the man, the myth, the legend, and we have him right here at our own Chagrin Falls High School. Mr. Donald Wem has experienced many things in life, including teaching, coaching, and serving in the U.S. military. He reveals his many fascinating encounters in his many famous stories.

Mr. Wem has had an incredible wrestling career. He was inducted into the "All Sports" Hall of Fame at the University of Toledo just three years ago. This was a tremendous honor because only three people receive this award each year out of the on hundred or more seniors who graduate (both male and female) in all the sports that the school offers. His total career record for wrestling was: 323 VICTORIES 23 LOSSES 6 TIES

He is presently coaching the boys wrestling team at Chagrin and has many memories which keep him and his students laughing. For instance, when he first coached, the wrestlers wore leggings over their uniforms. There was one boy who was so nervous that he forgot to put on his uniform. He shook hands with his opponent and proceeded to take off his legging. Boy, did he get a response from the crowd! Mr. Wem said that he learned from that experience, and now he checks to make sure all of his wrestlers have their uniforms on.

STORIES BY WEM

Not only is he an outstanding wrestler, he also takes much pride in his teaching physical education. Mr. Wem enjoys teaching high school students. He feels they are an exciting age group to work with. "They are open-minded and are willing to try." He even had an opportunity to coach in college at UCLA, but he turned it down because he enjoys teaching at the high school level so much. He has encountered many different types of students who do some funny things. He used to have all the classes run to the bowling alley and back in one gym period. The runners would pick up their number at the bowling alley mail box and return it to him to get credit. Some boys knew this run was coming up so they got their friends to drive off campus, pick them up down the road, go swimming at one of the homes near by, drive to the lanes to pick up their number, hide in the truck, and return to the school. Ralph Quesinberry and Wem heard of this and stopped all oncoming cars and opened up all the trunks. They saw the students hiding, and they got them out and they had to run every day for the next week. Mr. Wem said, "You should have seen their faces when the trunk opened up and we were staring down at them."

Farrah Thomas exclaimed, "He is the ultimate story teller." And what about the time he killed the shark in the Carribean and... we'll let him elaborate on this story for you.

Hannah Raymond is presently a vocational student in commercial art at Orange High School. Hannah wants to get a job in the art field and is using this opportunity to enhance her artistic talents. Her goal is to complete a portfolio by the end of the year in hopes of getting into college and furthering her art education.

Hannah takes all of her required classes at Chagrin, and then after fifth period drives herself to Orange High School. There are seventeen students who are involved in this program with Hannah. They are assigned their art project and then work for two and a half hours per day. Hopefully, Hannah's perseverance will aid her in her future art endeavors.

An interview with Molly Jackson

Molly Jackson is a senior who takes an extra art class at the Cleveland Institute of Art. The classes usually last from one to two hours and are held about once a week. The class consists of drawing thirty second quick sketches, as well as nude sketchings. Molly said that before her first class of nude sketching she was a little uncomfortable, but once she got into the classroom, the professionalism of the entire classroom eased her worries and she realized that she had nothing to worry about. Molly recommends taking extra classes outside of school for the experience and especially if you are interested in pursuing a career related to that class. Molly, at the moment is undecided on the exact profession, however, she definitely wants it to deal with art.

UNLEASH YOUR Creativity

Taking an art class is not only a necessity, but also a great opportunity to let out frustrations and emotions through art. "Art really helps me express myself," says art student Kristy Rop. With instructors Mr. Olah, Mr. King, and Mrs. Chapin, the goal to such peace of mind was easily accomplished. Projects scoring high on the creativity scale this year were Mrs. Chapin's nonfunctional art and Mr. King's life-sized people paintings. Ideas such as these kept students working diligently and productively.

Photography, another popular class with students put new demands on student creativity, as well. The class consisted of learning about cameras and film developing, as well as how to take creative, well composed photographs. "I really enjoy my photography class for the freedom I have to express myself," explains Liz DeMuch. As soon as basics of photography were introduced, the class could be seen snapping pictures all over school and town. These pictures were later developed and mounted by the students.

The business classes, led by Mrs. Murphy were marketing, typing, and accounting. The marketing classes got very creative. Throughout the year they advertised for many of the schools functions. For example, for the sloppy joe dinner they made a commercial and for other such affairs they made posters as well as commercials. The accounting and marketing classes combined and put together their own businesses where they actually created their own products. By UNLEASHING their creativity, these students had the unique advantage of freeing themselves from the typical classroom experience of being lectured to.

In human genetics, dark eyes and type A or B blood are dominant traits, which will appear in the offspring if one of the parents is a contributor. Like the "dark eyes" or "type A or B blood" of genetics, the students at CFHS also tend to dominate. Although Chagrin students possess varying interests and attitudes, this small high school gives us a common link, dominance. Our success is evident everywhere from the classroom to the athletic fields. But where does this advantage lie?

CFHS's advantage lies in its small size. In this small school, everyone knows everyone. Thus, many relationships are developed and friendships are made. This knowledge of each other unites us as a single unit. Much is accomplished as a result of our closeness. The small class size has led to big scores on tests such as the freshmen proficiency tests. Even our undersized teams encounter big success on the athletic fields. Many teams such as golf, soccer, and cross-country boast top rankings in their conferences. Our small size enables us to have big privileges. For example, the lack of locks on our lockers is a convenience which stems from our closeness and trust of one another. Also, our numerous contacts with teachers during the day provide us with a more relaxed atmosphere in which to learn. Finally, commons, the social center of the school, with its ping-pong table and video games and a benefit of our small size. In conclusion, the next time you walk into the office and the secretary knows you by name, smile because you know that this is just another reason for our dominating traits.

JUNIORS

UPPERCLASSMANSHIP

Our junior year! Finally the reign of being an upperclassman had begun. For most of us it marked a turning point in high school, and this year proved to be the best, so far. Although our new-found privileges may sound minuscule to many, they were looked on with envy by the underclassmen. Some of these more valued privileges were driving to school and opting out of gym. Of course, the ultimate privilege that every underclassman yearned for and that every junior appreciated the most, was that of commons--a great kind of study hall where we were allowed to relax, play ping-pong, eat snacks, gossip, listen to our favorite music, have great chats with Sandy (our commons lady), and occasionally get some homework done.

We are already looking forward to next year when we will be bestowed with yet more privileges as exalted seniors. We'll have our very own parking lot; no more long walks in the bitter cold for us! Our class will also have the benefit of having the Class of '96 pay for OUR prom! Now, won't that be special?

Finally, even though we look back on our junior year with fondness, we look forward to next year with even greater anticipation. We will eagerly await Homecoming, Winter Formal, spring break, and let's not forget Pumpkin Roll '94; for some reason sliding down pumpkin coated asphalt in November seems so appealing. All these things, and many more, will make our last year at CFHS one to remember.

Bryce Marshall, a junior at Chagrin likes high school life. He has spent most of his academic life in Chagrin and has grown very fond of the town. When asked about Chagrin he said, "I like the fact that the town is very familiar and friendly. The town is small and comfortable, whereas other larger towns can be intimidating."

Bryce has also become involved in clubs such as Art Club and Weight Club. He demonstrates his amazing artistic ability through his participation in Art Club. With his artistic ability, Bryce hopes to create a career for himself in graphic design.

In his spare time Bryce enjoys "hanging out". He likes to play sports with his friends, such as playing basketball, and football. Some of his favorite sports are downhill skiing and golf. In addition to playing sports, Bryce enjoys drawing whenever he gets a chance.

When asked about his future plans Bryce said, "I plan to pursue a career in graphic design and commercial art through a college education."

During the first few months of the 1993-1994 school year Rafa Zaim was a junior at Chagrin. She had been a foreign exchange student from Sydney, Australia. She came here in August to live with her aunt and uncle. Before she came to the United States, Rafa was involved in many activities. She has taken tae kwon do for six years, and received a black belt. Rafa was also involved in many youth organizations. She has shown her interest in journalism through her participation in the newspaper. Rafa had been the Advertising editor and an executive member of the school Newspaper. Rafa participated in sports, such as touch football and cricket.

Rafa continued some of the activities when she was living

AFS, mixed chorus, Key Club, and Channel 4. She also played an important role on the junior team for Powder Puff.

Unfortunately Rafa had to go back to Australia early. But she says that she has made a lot of friends that she will remember always. She felt that the counselors and teachers were very supportive. Rafa hopes to revisit the U.S. Rafa Zaim had to go back to Australia but she left many friends behind.

SOPHOMORES

THE ROAD TO INDEPENDENCE

No longer frosh, but still not juniors was what sophomore year was all about. We seemed to be in the middle of everything during our sophomore year, but we knew deep down inside that we were on our way to a fun and exciting future. With so many things to look forward to, school was anything but a bore.

Being a sophomore meant that we no longer had to stand on a lunch table and sing for the seniors, and that we didn't have to do anything special for the upperclassmen to notice us. We felt a little better about ourselves than we did last year. We were no longer the school's subhuman species.

We also had that wonderful class that every sophomore eagerly looked forward to — HEALTH! If we wanted something to make our sophomore year a little more exciting, this was the answer. Although some might say, "oh no, not health class!", after their first 40 minutes of it, we knew that this class was one that we wouldn't skip. There was a point in all of our lives when we started wondering about specific things dealing with our body, but we were just too scared to ask about them. Well, this was our chance to find out anything we ever wanted to know about bodily functions. Though health was only a semester long, the wonderful topics, great activities, and stimulating movies all added up to pure enjoyment.

Then there was the one thing that all of us had been waiting for forever--the driver's license! We couldn't wait for that moment when we got our picture taken and were handed our first driver's license, knowing now that we were now able to drive legally. The pain and agony of driver's education class was well worth the wait! What freedom! What a sense of responsibility! What sheer pleasure of the road! A new era in our lives had begun.

Although all of these events were worth looking forward too, next year looks even more enticing as we ponder the thrill of the pumpkin roll, the awesome responsibility of the Prom, and the real test of the class's spirit and competitiveness-- the woman's junior-senior Powder Puff Football game!

her involvement in Peer Sarah Cooper, a Care and Student Council. sophomore at Chagrín enjoys high in these activities she is ac- school life. As a quote from her shows, "I really like being at the high school because it is a definite change from the middle school." The words "definite change" applies to there being a lot more freedom throughout the school than there ever was at the middle school. Since her first day of freshman year she has come to realize the friendliness of the student body and she has had the opportunity to meet many new people through work, and gymnastics takes up the rest of her time, so she really doesn't get to see her friends as much as she would like to. In the middle school she was also involved in track and cheerleading but she does not have much time for those anymore because of her serious involvement in gymnastics. Sarah says that sophomore more years is harder academically, but it is still a lot of fun, especially because of the fact she is no longer a little freshman.

Geoff Lockert, a new student from Newbury, joins Chagrin Falls High School as a sophomore. For Geoff moving to Chagrin is a little different than where he used to attend school. Geoff says that, "There is a little more homework and the kids compared to Newbury are a lot nicer." When looking back at it and comparing which school he likes more it is Chagrin. Geoff three that he is still highly involved in are cross country, basketball and track. Because of all his involvement in all these sports he has had the chance to meet, talk to and make friends with many of the students. When asked what he liked about Chagrin, he gave the answer a typical Chagrin high school student would give. "There is a lot more freedom and it is a lot of fun." For Geoff, coming to the high school was not that hard, considering he was coming as a sophomore and not a freshman, and so far he is enjoying Chagrin Falls High School.

First Year Fears

When the freshman class first walked into the front foyer of Chagrin Falls High School, their lives were changed forever. This group of unsuspecting students stumbled in on the first day hoping to find a new world. Much to their surprise, they found that the myths of high school life they had been hearing from older brothers and sisters turned out to be false. After the first week of school, most of their fears were replaced by the joy and excitement of things to come.

A few weeks into the school year, if not in jug, they spend their free time in the courtyard foot bagging or just hangin' out. When presented with the question, "What was your reaction when you first walked into the school?" Matt Rutkowski responded, "It was a joy to be embarking on a new adventure in life, one that I will remember for years and years to come." When confronted with the same question, Katie Rode, responded, "Like, it's so awesome! The guys are so hot." This wide range in answers, is symbolic of the wide range in personalities of the freshman class. When Liza Harkins was confronted with the question, "Describe your class in five words." She said, "diverse, neat, zany, happy, and exciting." This group of new recruits are all o.k. in the opinion of the upperclassmen.

These cheerleaders then followed the parade to the high school where more festivities were taking place. Here the guys were setting up for the bon fire and the cheerleaders kept the crowd busy unit the unleashing of the flames. Once the ball of fire was lit the major nights festivities begin. The crowd huddles around the fire and mingles with one another about what has happened, and what is going to happen later on. It is usually this night that initiates the start of "pumpkining". This gives classmates plenty of time to gather pumpkins for the annual pumkin roll only weeks away.

Dr. James Trusso

Chagrin Falls High School Principal Dr. James Trusso left October 20th to be superintendent of Brooklyn Schools. This was a great loss to everyone. Dr. Trusso has been in the Chagrin Falls school system for 10 years. Thinking back on these years he calls them, "An unbelievably rewarding experience."

Although the transfer to Brooklyn Schools will be quite different from what Dr. Trusso is used to in C.F., he accepts it as a great challenge. He is not worried about Chagrin having trouble without him. He believes the school is strong enough to endure such a change. Dr. Trusso says he will always remember the students he has had over the many years and the beauty of Chagrin. He never walked down the halls without receiving smiles and greetings from everyone. When Dr. Trusso left, he took a piece of Chagrin Falls High School with him. Chagrin loved Dr. Trusso and he will be missed greatly.

"Ummm, how many people did you say you had on your team? Oh, two-hundred, ok, NO PROBLEM."

Yes, Chagrin athletes have encountered this type of situation on several occasions throughout their high school athletic careers. This is the reality of a small school, but somehow Chagrin manages to rise above it. Whether we have had to kick, jump, spike, score, and sometimes even punch (ahem, Orange) our way to victory, we have always managed to prevail.

It is not a matter of extreme talent, as it seems, it is a matter of mindset. Chagrin athletes do not allow for size to bother them, they take no notice of it. Instead, they use their skills in order to get the job done. This is not to say that the students of Chagrin do not have talent. They do, and to quite a commendable degree in some cases; it is the combined talents of all the players on a team, however, that gives Chagrin its edge.

When it comes down to just statistics, Chagrin may not seem to be much of a powerhouse. The moment of truth, however, can be misleading. If we were to, say, cut out the records of some of the teams in Chagrin, the remaining group would be one of every coach's dream, for it is the moment of glory that really counts. Those times when teams have come together to prevail against all odds are what truly count.

Hence, Chagrin should not be viewed as a lesser group because of its size. Rather, it should be seen as superior because of its ability to draw from the available resources to come out ahead of the game...

The Chagrin Falls Varsity Soccer Team completed yet another successful season. Senior captain William Wahl led the young Tiger team to second place in the C.V.C and a district runner up title. Last second victories over rivals West Geauga and Orange led to a memorable season for the players and fans alike. With only four seniors on the team, some of the slack had to be picked up by the underclassmen. The defense was secured by seniors Kyle Creamer and Chris Sandman and three year starter Steve Frappier, a junior. The net was patrolled by C.V.C. All-star Bill Wahl. Travis Kruse, league leading scorer, was assisted by newcomers Tony Johnson and Brye Gerhardt to help the Tigers to score 55 goals this year. The midfield was controlled by Juniors Matt Jacobs and Brian Hazen and sophomore surprise Dave Grano. Personal honors were awarded to several Tiger soccer players this year. Bill Wahl won the Scott Brewer Memorial Award (team mvp). He also received first team honors for the Suburban Conference, The Chagrin Valley Conference and All Greater Cleveland. He

BUSHKA

What It Means

"One, two, three, bushka!"
"Bushka? What the heck does 'bushka' mean?"

Well, although its straight definition is not allowed to be disclosed, its meaning may be conveyed. Bushka meant a lot to the 1993 Chagrin Falls Girl's Varsity Soccer team. Whether at the beginning of a game as a cheer, or shouted in the middle of a second half in a time of need, bushka was used throughout the season.

Bushka was, simply, a word to symbolize unity in the team. The girls knew they had to work together and communicate in order to gain the winning edge. This is what they did - through bushka - and it obviously worked.

Coming into the season this year, there was some skepticism as to how the team would do because of the loss of nine seniors from the previous season. The girls, however, proved their talent with the return of ten lettermen, and the addition of some new talent. Returning lettermen included forwards Nicole Esposito, Emily Culver, Chris DiRenzo, and Daria Wyzinski, midfielders Suzanne Spellman, and Christine Knirsh, defenders Kate Mottinger, Shannon Manning, and Erin Eichler, and keeper Megan Schatz. The up and coming talent included two standout freshmen Jennifer Lankford and Jennifer Freshman. Also new on the varsity team this year were midfielders Kory Haase and Mindi Sanders, defenders Annie Lovell and PJ Meyer and keeper Karen Barlow. The well-rounded team displayed exceptional talent in order to prevail to a 13 - 2 record in the regular season.

Unfortunately, the tournaments did not reflect the rest of the season. Luck was not on the girls side as the first tournament game against Saint Vincent Saint Mary came up. With hopes to be crowned district champions, the girls went into the game with 100%. At the expense of two direct kicks, however, SVSM won the game, leaving the girls with a tournament loss and heavy hearts. The tournament game, however, is no way to remember the terrific season. The girls played exceptionally well, with bushka, to be ranked second in their region. Congratulations, girls, for a great season.

During the senior's first three years in the high school, a lot of excitement was building for the last year in high school football. These same group of guys have been playing football since they were nine. CAA football began their careers with unscored upon, undefeated season. Perhaps a tribute to an oversized Brad Shellgren, but none the less a power house. These were much different days when Burheem Bakr was tight end, Grant Varnum was a running back, and Chris Clark was a guard. The team would go out and dominate every week. Then the second and third strings would play the second half. The girls of the grade would come to the games and cheerlead to themselves. It was a glorious start. Eighth grade year came along and the Tigers didn't miss a beat. The 6-1 season that was the best ever in Chagrin Falls Middle School history. High school football was the chance to display all the talents under the limelight. The whole team was excited.

Freshmen year arrived, and the Tigers were holding their own against junior varsity teams from other schools. However, the team was not the same as before. Sophomore year came around and a lot of the players were mixed up, some playing varsity and some JV. Junior year became reality and the team was ready to strut their stuff. The 4-6 record didn't display the talent on the team.

Capping their most successful season since the legendary runners of '71, the boys cross country team brought home the State Runner-up title this season.

Running for Chagrin were seniors Jim Vickers, who ran to 17th place with All-Ohio honors, Todd Michel, and T.J. Aquaviva, junior Eric Laderer, sophomores Geoff Lockert and Trevor Hublin, and freshman Eric McGimpsey.

The boys had an interesting time at the State meet. The week before, they shaved their heads to varying from a few low cuts to two bald heads. The night before the meet, they also pierced their ears, although they were forced to lose the earrings before running Saturday morning. The extra hole must have helped decrease wind resistance, because this was the race of their lives. Another surprise for the team was a deal that they made with Mr. Goodwin, the assistant principle. He told them that if the boys won State, they could shave his head, and if they were second, they could cut his hair the way that most of theirs was cut. He was a good sport, stuck to the agreement, and in front of the whole school, Mr. Goodwin was shaved by Seniors Jim, T.J., and Todd.

The Girls' Cross-Country team had an exciting and successful season this year. Laden with injuries, it was a difficult one, but the team pulled through to come up with not only a Conference Championship, which was shared with Chardon, but a District Championship as well. Averaging about 35 miles a week, the girls were given the opportunity (or forced) to run

"9 milers" each week (oh, weren't they thrilled?!) The miles were a help to junior Cortney DeGross, who placed 19th in the State Meet with All-Ohio honors. Although the team did not make it to State, they all pulled through to watch Cortney and the boys down in Columbus. Winning the Conference Championship for the third year running was the highlight of the season for the girls. They won by an upset in a dual meet over Chardon, who later beat them in the Conference race. The girls also won Districts by one point to win for the third year in a row.

The 1993 girls' team consisted of seniors and co-captains Heather McGimpsey and Marie Irvin, juniors Cortney DeGross and Casey Abley, sophomores

Erin Flynn, Jessica Gilway, and Megan Rowland, and Freshmen Anne Cordek and Sarah Hauser.

Each of these girls had a lot to be happy for this season. Cross-country takes a lot of commitment, which the girls were willing to give to each other and themselves. The girls' team was special in this way because they worked together. Not only did they dedicate themselves to running, but also to spending their Saturdays at meets and their valuable Friday nights "chowing down" on pasta. They became very close, like a family. Each girl looked out for another, which is an important part of the sport - if one girl goes down, the others have to make up for her absence.

The girls are looking forward to the next season, where the future looks promising for 1994.

A suspenseful hush falls over the crowd as the golfer lines up his birdie putt. With a gentle tap of the club, the ball slowly rolls towards the cup, but stops just short of the hole. But our boys' golf team did not come up short of repeating a winning season with an 18-7 record.

Sharpening their golf skills, the team prepared with preseason warm-ups throughout the summer. "We had to get up really early to beat the heat, but our hard work has definitely paid off," said Jim Hendrix, a senior golf veteran. The Chagrin Falls Tiger Golf team has always been one to brag about and has always been one of our more successful teams. Courting the Advantage

The air was charged with electricity as the numerous fans sat on the edges of their seats to watch the deciding point. A hush fell over the crowd when the yellow ball whistled through the air, over the net and ricocheted against the back fence. In one moment the silence turned into exuberant yells as the tenacious tiger fans streamed onto the courts. While most of the fans pushed and clawed to be the first to congratulate the victorious player, others started the "Hey hey, good-bye," cheering to the dismay of the losing team. Celebrations lasted long after the humiliated opposing team had left.

This was the scene for most of the Varsity girls' tennis team's games, except that they didn't have a perfect season and the fans weren't exactly mob-like. In fact the crowds lining up to see the tennis matches were virtually nonexistent. But that didn't stop the tigers from putting their all into every match.

As senior Jenny Stinson replied, "The team played really well this year, we all had a lot of fun, and pulled through to make it a successful season." Determination was evident in everything the tennis team did. From grueling 7 A.M. practices, to matches that lasted three hours, the tigers proved why they have been a competitive team. Coach Joanne Kirk was pleased with her groups' performance. It is a great possibility that next years' team will be even more successful with the team being so young. This years team consisted of only two seniors, captain Becky Hall and Jenny Stinson, four juniors Kate Peterson, Liz DeMuch, Meredith Neidhardt, Heather Kipp, one sophomore Hallie Kuhr and one freshman Julie Herron. Although there were no screaming fans, the varsity girls' tennis team had another strong and exciting season. Who knows, maybe the crowds will come next year.

BASKETBALL

Rolls

The boys' basketball team had a very successful season after a difficult one last year. Going into the season with little to no expectations, the basketballers broke the five hundred mark, and played some very tough teams down to the wire. Brad Shellgren adds, "The new system was hard to adjust to, but once we were able to figure it out, every team was within reach."

Juniors that contributed to the team were Travis Kruse, Marc Iantosca, Erik Rozsa, Scott Lankford, Bobby Padavick and Dan Carlton. The juniors made up much of the size, but the leadership roles were obviously held by the Seniors. Brad Shellgren finishing up his third year as a varsity starter, pushed the tigers to excellence. Brad Cornell was the muscle of the team, and as a dominating rebounding force down low in the key and was unmatched by anyone in the league. Bill Wahl's slash and run style helped put points on the board, and a patent on his left handed layup. Jim Vickers was the most outstanding defensive skill to come out of Chagrin in a long time, and with his sky jumpshot he will hold a place in our hearts, forever. Tom "Moose" Macey had a great shot that anybody in the Chagrin Falls High School could bet their life on. No matter how many times Tom would shoot, call of "Moooooose" would be heard in approval. These Seniors will live in eternity with each one holding a special skill.

With a new coach, Jim Serluco, the tigers worked with a renewed pride. The new style worked the tigers into a transition game, running and gunning. The superb shooting by all of the guards, and the leaping ability of the big men created a combination that was tough to prepare for. The respect of the shooting game was seen when two of the members of the team, Bill Wahl and Brad Shellgren, were asked to compete in a three point shootout.

This was the last season for many players, and a very memorable one. Brad Cornell sums up his experience playing at Chagrin by saying, "The days at Ralph Quisenberry Gymnasium will be forever a permanent fixture in my life."

Two players that have contributed greatly to the tiger basketball team are Bill Wahl and Brad Shellgren. Brad and Bill started their sophomore year. Brad has led the show for the past three years, while Bill has been at the top in scoring. Brad and Bill have been spiritual leaders throughout this season.

Layup Victories

The girls' basketball team used its experience and youth to combine and expand on last year's success. They were led by three year lettermen Jenny Stinson and Erin Eichler. Eichler and Stinson's experience and talent helped cultivate the young sophomore and freshmen skill. Sisters Kelly and Cory Haase demonstrated how well the younger players could contribute if given the chance and opportunity that the older players allowed.

Nicole Esposito, another starter, decided two years ago to try basketball. Nicole became a valued defensive member of the team, and brought the ball up the court.

Many of the teams that the lady tigers beat were very talented teams that were looking forward to the playoffs. Teams such as Mentor, Kenston, and Chardon were some of the toughest teams in the area. The tigers took the second ranking team in the CVC, West Geauga, into double overtime. They finished fourth in the CVC, the highest placing in the last four years. Their 12-8 record is a nice improvement on the 10-10 record of last year, and the underclassmen have plans to improve on that.

Jenny Stinson had forty percent accuracy from three point land, and was fifty five percent from the field.

Erin Eichler used her 13.8 points per game to help the tigers toward victory every night. Nicole Esposito excelled in stealing the basketball. With 4.7 steals per game, Coach Phillips knew who to go to when the tigers were Another freshmen that was indispensable to the team was Megan Anderson. She was a key factor in the strong rebounding that the tigers took pride in this season.

Other lady tigers that contributed greatly to the team were Casey Abley, Christine Knirsh, Christy Svette, and Daria Wyszynski. Jenny Stinson said of the season, "I was really happy to be able to end my career at Chagrin Falls with a team like this."

Burheem Bakr, tri-captain of The Tigers' wrestling team had a very successful season. He has been a varsity wrestler for four years and became a very dominant wrestler in his junior and senior years. This season, Burheem has recorded an outstanding record of nineteen wins and three losses before tournaments. In his words, "The team was great all year but did not recognize its potential until tournament time at the end of the year." ## State Bound "Winning twelve tournaments and winning sectionals" was the goal of the Chagrin Falls Tiger wrestling team according to senior Burheem Bakr.

All of these goals were met in the course of a very impressive season.

Tiger matmen set new school records several times this season in routs of Clearview (71-3), Newbury (72-3), Gilmour (72-0), and have crushed several other teams such as Orange (70-3), Wickliffe (66-12), Rocky River (52-14), and Berkshire (54-19). The Tigers also slammed Ashtabula (78-0) with the high-test score possible in high school wrestling. The grapplers won Pymatuning Valley eight-team dual meet tournament, the Newbury Quadrangular, and placed second out of eight teams at the Brecksville Invitational Tournament. The four losses came to state ranked Twinsburg and a few other very talented squads. In the words of Grant Varnum, "If we had our entire team healthy, we could very well be undefeated." Coaches Mr. Wem, Mr. Olah, and Tom Belshaw have worked hard together with the captains, Grant

Varnum, Burheem Bakr, and Clay Bartel, as well as senior leaders, Chad Schron and Robin Bloch to make this season so successful, with twelve out of thirteen wrestlers that have winning records, the Tigers will be more than ready for the state tournament.

DIFFERENT STROKES

The 1993-1994 Tiger girls swim team finished their season with a bang. Team captain junior Allyson Klebes led the girls to an 8-6 team record, the best season record in five years. After losing seven seniors last year, it was a time for rebuilding and that is just what coach Wally Lutkus did, taking his fabulous and talented crop of new swimmers to soaring heights. "I've been around for five years, and I've never coached a more hardworking, dedicated team as this one. For our size, everyone has contributed as much as they can in every way." The team performed extremely well at meets and gave all opponents their share of hard core competition. The season was highlighted with a victory over their biggest rival, Kenston.

The swim team was also no stranger to traveling. They showed their extreme love of the sport by making the trip to the Gilmour Academy pool for daily two hour "hell" practices. Having no home pool put the Chagrin girls at a minor disadvantage. But their patience and flexibility got them through the season

Districts were held at the Cleveland State Pool and lasted for two days of competitive swimming. Teams from sixty-three schools came to compete and seek out the best of the best. Chagrin tied for fifteenth place with Westlake. Kathleen Holtz had a super day taking eighth place in the 100 back with a time of 101.3. She stole a tenth place in the 100 fly and dramatically

The gymnastics team was full of determination and spirit for the up and coming season. With the loss of only one senior last year, the veteran team, lead by senior captain, Catherine Eaton, focused on improving from last year. This year's team, consisting of eighteen girls, is the largest team Chagrin has produced in Coach Murphy's last three years here. The team has worked very hard trying for personal bests and have shown hard work and dedication through the two and a half hour practices and late night meets. Some girls have even come in during free periods to perfect their routines. All of this hard work has paid off. The gymnasts completed the season with a 6-4 record and placed fourth in the CVC meet.

The girls have proved the team to be strong as they've weathered many hardships. These hardships range from the struggle with five other teams

Raise Spirit

With the score tied and less than a minute remaining, the cheerleaders scream, "Go Bananas!" in an attempt to boost the crowd's spirit and cheer the team to victory.

To prepare for upcoming seasons, the girls attended a summer camp at Baldwin Wallace College where they captured many spirit awards. "We learned many new skills which helped improve our squads," stated Kaly Harkins.

Perfecting a new cheer and mounts required hours of weekly practice. "The practices were long and hard, but they paid off in the long run," stated Alison Ramsey.

Cheerleaders employed different methods of fundraising for new uniforms and Winter Formal. The cheerleaders ran the Dunk 'Em Booth at Blossom Time which brought in hundreds of dollars. Even though the weather was nice, the water in the tank was unbearable. This added to the customer's joy when they hit the bull's eye.

Cheerleaders went out late at night to TP the football player's houses for Homecoming. The basketball and football players also receive baked goods in order to give them a sugar high for their game. "We spent a lot of time outside of practice working on surprises for the players," stated Sara Tervo and Margo Meteet.

Not only did the girls focus on the team, but getting the crowd pepped up remained just as important. "We appreciated the crowd involvement and enthusiasm," said Jenny Zierold.

Attending home and away games sometimes interfered with weekend plans, but the games were their prior engagements. "My night was never ruined, just postponed," stated Molly Lubs.

After all the hard work and practice, the girls enthusiastically showed off their spirit. After all of the hours of practicing, teepeeing houses, and cheering during games, many pleasant memories and new long-lasting friendships were formed.

DANCE SQUAD

Keeping Spirits Up

The Chagrin Falls Drill Team and Dance Squad held a key role in the spirit of Chagrin. The dedication of the squads reflect on the smiles of the crowd as they danced during halftime. The Drill Team incorporated flags, pom-poms, and rings into exciting dances coordinated with the band for their halftime shows. The Dance Squad, on the other hand, danced to popular music during halftime at the basketball games. Both teams were enhanced by the addition of many new underclassmen this year. This greater number led to more spirit as they performed for the crowds. Fortunately for the new underclassman, the squads will be able to continue next year despite the loss of this year's dedicated seniors. The Drill Team consisted of many devoted members, who went to every football game, home and away, and entertained the fans during halftime. Most importantly they cheered the football team on to victory along with the cheerleaders.

One major accomplishment of the Dance Squad was the opportunity to perform at a Case Western Reserve University basketball game. There, they were able to demonstrate their talent as a team. Overall, their spirit and hard work enhanced every game they attended and we look forward to seeing them next year.

SPORTS CANDIDS

Campbell's soup cans have labels, clothing has labels, cigarettes have warning labels, and people do, too. Objects, much like people, are easily recognized by their labels. Even non-reading kindergarteners can easily recognize a box of Fruit Loops by Toucan Sam on the label, or more importantly they can recognize a dangerous bottle of poison by the ☠. Labels are not always negative, especially for people. Clubs aid in producing positive labels. People on the speech/debate team may automatically be esteemed for their flare for public speaking, while others may be jealous of the weight club's "buff" bodies. Also, Key Club members might be esteemed for their altruistic outlook on life, while National Honor Society members may be appreciated for their dedication and hard work in class. Choir members have developed a life long hobby and a musical label, while a concern for the environment might identify a science club member. All these various clubs contribute to the formation of character and give people labels, which can be used to their advantage.

The various clubs and organizations at Chagrin Falls High School create the many-faceted personalities of students, which help them achieve higher goals. In this politically correct world, labels may be positive and help us on the road to success, and the clubs of Chagrin Falls High School may stereotype you in a positive way.

RIVER'S END

1 Midwestern Floods. Every spring the Mississippi River overflows its banks, more or less gently. This year the floods were devastating—not just because of heavy rains but also because levees have constricted the river. Without its historic escape valves, the river burst some levees and roared over levee-less stretches. The toll: 20 million acres waterlogged 50 lives lost and $12 billion in damage.

Far Right: Yearbook staff members glance through other yearbooks to gather ideas to improve this year's edition of Zenith.

Elena Grigera, our accountant and business manager helped keep our budget in the black

Section editor Alison Ramsey shuffles through pictures in order to find the perfect one for her layout,

Above: Kate Mottinger, the editor, celebrates the completion of our final yearbook deadline. Praise the Lord!

In Yearbook We Dig Up the Present

In Jurassic Park, archeologists dig up remnants of the past, while the members of the Zenith club dig up the present. We are always busy preserving the present through our pictures and words. Many people do not realize the amount of work that we put into our "archeology." The production of the yearbook includes working with complex computer systems, finding pictures, writing copy, selling advertisements, and beating the newspaper class to computers so that we can meet all of our deadlines.

Well, it's been a long haul. The members of the staff have been invaluable in the Zenith's success and deserve many thanks. First and foremost, I am eternally grateful to Advisor Balk. His sense of humor and energy helped us survive and made the class fun. Without him, none of this would have been possible. Thank you P.J. for your creative designs of the layouts in sports, and for your tremendous support. Elena, our four year veteran, thanks for keeping our accounts in order. Therese, the ads look amazing. Section editors; Becky, Molly, Lisa, and Sara, your hard work definitely has paid off. Heather, your assistance made production smoother. Finally, to all the remaining members of the staff, your effort gave us a definite advantage and good luck next year.

A special thanks to the parents and local merchants who have advertised and continue to advertise in this book. We could not have financed the Zenith without your generosity. Lastly, we would like to thank the Chagrin Falls High School student body for its constant support and feedback (positive and negative). You really do possess an advantage. We hope that this year's edition is the best yet, and we wish you all a great year.

-K.M.

Dear Jack & Brad-

You have always been two super men! We are so proud of you both.
We love you.

Mom & Dad

CHRIS and JIM

Let your friendship continue to grow in love, respect, and understanding, as a process in finding that inner spark of divinity that sets us off and makes us different from every other living creature.

You are God's sons whom we have had the pleasure and joy of sharing with Him.

We love you!

ACTIVITIES

Good times, fond memories, friendships, and more.
Here's to the Class of '94

Best Wishes,
Your Parents

The Zenith Staff would like to thank the parent and business patrons and Booster Club, whose contributions made this yearbook possible.

Congratulations to the Class of '94

Twelve months, 365 days, or 8766 hours all represent one thing . . . a year. 1994 cannot be defined by these numbers alone, but instead by the events, activities and people, which shaped the year. And what a year it was . . .

Mother nature created a few minor "mishaps" this year such as earthquakes, floods, etc. Mississippi valley inhabitants will not forget this year as we watched houses float away like toy boats and water consume field after field. Sunny California was shaken 4:31

A.M. on Martin Luther King Day by one of the worst earthquakes of the decade, leaving freeways destroyed and people with six hour commutes to work. While California withstood the quake, we here in the eastern part of the U.S. were also shaking, but from a different element, the COLD! We had freezing temperatures and record snowfall, forcing a week of school cancellations. Yes, let me dwell upon that delightful experience when we had seven consecutive days off of school during midterms.

The trials (literally) and tribulations of the year have led to change. The courts dictated many of the events in the U.S. as leniency prevailed.

We have evolved into a society full of sympathy for the abused. Although the Menendez brothers admitted to murdering their parents, they were saved by a sympathetic jury, who could not decide their fate. The infamous Lorena Bobbitt was blessed with a verdict of temporary insanity, leaving her with no jail sentence. Even the International Olympic Committee surrendered the fight to keep figure skater Tonya Harding from competing, when a $25 million lawsuit from Tonya surfaced.

The Harding and Kerrigan scandal dominated (or should we say consumed) the press until the Lillehammer Olympics began and the many accomplishments goes

of the U.S. athletes evoked more interest than the many scandals. Bonnie Blair, Tommy Moe and the U.S. ski team made medal history, while Dan Jansen finally fulfilled his golden dreams that had "slipped" out of reach so many times previously.

World and domestic events also shaped our year. The fighting in Bosnia and Serbia concerned many as we tried desperately to ameliorate the situation there. The Japanese trade wars, the war on crime, the health care plan, and Michael Jordan's retirement were just some of the events which molded this amazing year.

But sometimes these events seemed so distant. Although these events impacted the world scene, we were simply passive observers. The everyday mundane school events that we were so much a part of, shaped our lives. We evolved over the course of the year, while aided by the many benefits of Chagrin. The pressure of the future and the real world looms over our heads, especially those of the seniors, and we must utilize our experiences to create our own advantages because after the advantage, life goes on . . .

Colophon

The 1994 Zenith was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks of Shawnee Mission, Kansas. Press run was 400 copies. John Fowley served as company representative. Leonard Balk advised the publication and Kate Mottinger edited the 1994 edition.

Body and caption copy is New Century Schoolbook. Standard body copy is 12 point; captions and sidebars are 10 point type size. Four point color was used. The grey embossed cover and insignia was designed by Kate Mottinger. The text paper is Bordeaux. The color photographs are color prints submitted to size.

The headlines used in the division pages and closing were created using Cored Draw on an IBM PS/2 computer. The layouts were created on Aldus Pagemaker. Zenith yearbooks sold for $32.00 and $35.00 personalized. The book has 176 pages.

Special thanks to the Chagrin Boosters, Mr. Leonard Balk, Mr. John Fowley, the entire yearbook staff, and all of our patrons for making this book possible.

Catch the Action

1. Will Vranich sprints home to score another Tiger run against St. Joseph High School. As he crosses homeplate, he turns and looks behind him to see if he can direct any other teammates attempting to score.

2. Taylor Marshall protects the plate by fouling off a fastball from the opposing pitcher. On the next pitch Taylor singled sharply to the gap in right center field and drove in a Tiger runner.

Varsity Baseball

This year's Varsity Baseball team, coached by Robert Lonchar, began its twenty-five game schedule on March 30 with an impressive 5-1 victory over Mayfield. Their opening day triumph featured a grand slam by Jason Miller for his first hit of the season. When asked about the team, Jason, who also doubles as the teams number one pitcher stated, "the team is very young, but competitive." They start five sophomores. According to coach Lonchar, "This is the first time in 15 to 20 years we have had five or six sophomores playing varsity.

Though it will take time for the so called rookies to adjust to the varsity level of play, right now, the future looks bright for the upcoming seasons. Overall, this years team, with all its youth and inexperience, could best be described as unpredictable. Senior Mike Krok summed it up best in saying, "its going to be exciting, and I hope we can win a few on the way."

Softball Covers the Bases

Coach Malone Gives New Hope

Mrs. Malone, now in her second year as head coach, has brought the girls softball team from relative obscurity into the forefront of the CVC. She believes that "the main improvement since last year is that we are hitting more and we have been competitive in every game." With the return of veterans such as Katy Hagan Courtney Bartel, and Jessica Gokorsch, and the addition of Rachel Freshmen, the Tigers have both depth and experience as well as strength and quickness. As Rachel Freshmen summed it up, "We have a lot of potential and a lot of experience and it will just be a matter of time until we get everything together, and when we do, we'll be a power team!" This positive attitude is shared by the whole varsity and junior varsity team. Mindi Sanders stated, "I like the competitiveness of our team. We have a lot of team spirit which is the deciding factor in the close games." The strong spirit and the enthusiasm of the two teams has brought them this far and will continue to strengthen them in the coming years.

The Tiger girls have had some outstanding games this year, which have shown their true potential and talent. One memorable game, according to Courtney Bartel (seen in the above picture), was their game against Kirtland. The Tigers had a victory of 15-4 in this amazing game. The Tigers led 5-4 at the bottom of the fifth inning. Molly Jackson was at the plate with the bases loaded, as she clocked a homer into right field, giving the Tigers four runs, and leading their way to their nine run streak. This streak crushed Kirtland's spirit and increased Chagrin's confidence, which was the difference in the final outcome.

1. Erin Eichler takes batting practice while Pamela Malone watches her intently.

2. Suzanne Spellman prepares to drive the ball through the infield in the JV's game against Chardon.

On the Center Court

Outlook Bright for Tennis

Despite the cold, cloudy April weather, the boys tennis has a bright outlook. Being young and talented, the Chagrin Falls Varsity tennis team has set high standards for the future. Five advanced freshman, two juniors, and one sophomore plan to win the Chagrin Valley Conference. To them, winning is everything, and as Ryan Thompson said, "this team has a lot of potential. We have a very good chance of going undefeated." Although they are young, they are also extremely talented. To compensate for their inexperience, the team has grown together like a family unit, with each member providing support for one another. This inner stability and raw talent prove to be the basis for an extremely successful team, both this year and in years to come.

1. Kevin O'Malley prepares for an upcoming shot.
2. Returning a serve, Ryan Thompson backhands the final point.

Spring into Action

What do hard work, dedication, and talent all make up? You guessed it, track. Everyone has seen those packs of dedicated runners jogging through the cold wintery streets. What does it take to be one of those runners? It takes a lot of time, dedication, and energy. Unlike any other sport, track requires the burning desire of an athlete to constantly improve. Well, this year's track athletes have all of these elements, and it is showing up in the meets.

On boys track, many star athletes have returned to hold onto their reigns on the track. Many new freshmen have also joined the team this year to improve its status. In just the first meet, all of the long distance runners in the two mile race achieved their personal best (PB) times. Travis Kruse, a freshman, also joined in the fight by jumping 5'8" on the high jump at the annual WRA relays. Overall, they are looking good!

The girls team also has an eye on improvement this year, although they had six athletes go to state last year. Even with the loss of three exceptional seniors, Laura Wurster, Shawn Conley, and Trisha Powers, this goal is very possible. The numerous returning athletes, however, will compensate for these losses. Talented new freshmen and a new sophomore star, Heather McGimpsey, will definitely be winning components for the team. "The competition appears harder this season, yet there are many talented and dedicated runners on the team. Overall, the enthusiasm and spirit of the athletes will encourage both personal and team success," states junior co-captain, Lori Fisher. This statement is very true, and the team knows it. The athletes will try their best to have fun and win this season.

In conclusion, track success this year looks very promising after the first few meets. The athletes will continue to strive to higher and better goals.

GREASE

A New Age 50's Rock & Roll Musical

"It was the best school musical I've ever seen!" was Alyssa Wells' response to the spring musical, Grease presented on Friday and Saturday, March 20th and 21st. The enthusiastic sold out crowds were an indication of the quality program. "I had to sneak in, in order to find a seat. All the tickets were sold so far in advance," quotes Tamara Savage.

The lead roles of Sandy and Danny were played by Lindsay Saylor and Greg Lockert respectively and with the outstanding talent of the group the roles were performed superbly.

"Everything went so smoothly backstage and on stage to make this play memorable," stated Suzanne Spellman who added to this play's chorus. This play truly reflected the supportive community and talented students which Chagrin Falls possesses. From all aspects of the play, it was definitely a success.

1. Jennifer Zierold, as Paty Simcox, poses for the audience during a lunchtime scene in Grease.

2. Matt, Henk, and Bill, the Burger Palace Boys, hang out looking for trouble.

3. Wendy Rufener, as Jan, eats ravenously while listening to Lydian, otherwise known as Marty, talk about her dating dilemmas.

4. Members of the chorus dance and sing with tremendous enthusiasm.

5. Staring as Sandy, Lindsay Saylor exhibits her musical talent to the audience.

6. Greg Lockert, Danny, sings of his summer with Sandy to the rest of the Greasers.

The Orange and Black Revue of 1992 had you standing on your chairs and dancing in the aisles. The show kicked off with the band Jeremiah Jerusalem and the Funk Barbies and closed with the senior women showing their true colors in Delta, Delta, Delta. Throughout the performances emcee's Jon Sachtjen and Chris Shellgren entertained the crowd with their own unique form of humor. The infamous musical groups Wolf's Blade, a three year veteran, and Witch's Veil with their second showing also appeared. Dan Dierenzo and Joel Fay made their debut with the musical and song writing duet called Tweaker Jones. Besides all of the musical talent this year's OABR contained its usual dancing, lip syncing, and take-off skits. Overall this year's acts reflected the good, the bad, and the ugly sides of life as only Chagrin Falls High students could see.

1. Mike Krok practices flying while Jason Miller and Jason Largey dive for cover during a rehearsal for "Chicken Rhapsody".
2. Nicky Sommer gyrates like Elvis with lighting quick hip thrusts during practice.
3. Mike Esposito reviews the finer points of a dance routine with his apprentices Brad McFarland and Ryan Trautman.
4. "The Drag Queens" practice their chorus lineup in preparation for opening night.
5. "The Sober Criminals" bounce to the bass while rapping all the while.
6. Dancin' Danny Direnzo lights up the stage with his own tweaked out style of dance.

Earth Day

This spring at Chagrin Falls High School the students experienced two Earth awareness days. The two days consisted of on-campus sessions and off-campus field trips. The objective of these days were to inform future generations of ways to improve the conditions of our Earth. In addition to the sessions and trips, there were two keynote speakers which truly motivated students and faculty members. These two speakers included Mr. Harvey Alston and Mr. Harvey Webster. The sessions consisted of discussions on our planet's vanishing rainforests, endangered animals, ozone depletion, infectious wastes, water pollution, recycling, and many sessions involving threats to mom (Mother Earth). The field trips filled up the two day extravaganza with visits to Holden Arboretum, Silver Creek Farm, Northern Ohio Waste Systems, and Solon Recycling Center.

Did You Know:

-Every day, the earth gets enough energy from the sun to heat every home in the world free for a year.

-If all Americans turned down their heat six degrees in the winter, we would save 500,00 barrels of oil each day.

-The average American spends only 3% of his or her life outdoors.

-U.S. businesses use five billion cubic ft. of polystyrene foam (peanuts) in packaging per year which could fill the Empire State Building over 135 times.

-460,000 plants are edible but we only use 150.

-For every gallon of gasoline a car uses, it puts out 20 pounds of carbon dioxide which is a major green-house gas.

-Three million cars are abandoned each year in the U.S.

1. Mike Voss and Ben Ehrenbeit check out Ryan's Roving Rain Forest on Wheels.
2. Micah Sanders feeds a peanut to Raspberry the Macaw, one of the many endangered species of the tropical rainforest.
3. Mr. Harvey Alston, Earthday's keynote speaker, inquires as to the future goals of Jason Perrotta.

"... I think a majority of our students learned something they will carry with them for the rest of their lives." D. Axner

1. Enjoying a close encounter of the reptilian kind, Jennifer Lind learns the finer points of lizard handling.
2. Pam Kidd sports goggles while testing pond water for oxygen content.
3. Chris Direnzo, Christy Grano, and Jennifer Zierold, enjoy the newborn lambs at Silver Creek Farm.
