Bridging the Gap

In the fall of 1991 the long-awaited and somewhat controversial Cleveland Street Bridge opened to traffic, allowing travel through and around the environs of Chagrin Falls a good deal more convenient. The span, when viewed by the casual observer, is not an imposing or unique edifice, but one that is taken for granted. Few really notice the challenge of design, construction, or labor, the result of which eventually bridged the gap between the east and west banks of the Chagrin River. Similarly, to the outsider the 1991-92 school year probably would appear rather mundane and far from unique from any other year. But to those of us who lived it, we also had to face the challenges of planning, working, and adjusting. We, too, found that we had to somehow "bridge the gap."

From freshmen to seniors, we all faced the obstacles and challenges of the school year. The freshmen, like all freshmen, had to make that initial step into a world where by virtue of age found themselves a little inferior and unsure of themselves. The sophomores had to shoulder their new responsibilities as they shed the dreaded underling image. As for the upperclassmen, the reality of "what comes next" finally began to settle in. Decisions about future career moves weighed heavily on their minds. The inevitable pressure of SAT's and ACT's and GPA's, (Is mine high enough?) and the relentless deadlines for college applications, college essays, and college recommendations, made the year one that few would ever forget. The seniors had the additional distraction of trying to figure out a way to combat acute cases of "senioritis" once plans were "etched in stone". Add to this the challenge of academic respectability, social acceptance, and good 'ole athletic competition, and the 'gap' looked more like a chasm—gaping and insurmountable.

But it wasn't just students who had to overcome obstacles and challenges. Over 25% of the high school staff found themselves either new to the school or in new positions. It was the greatest turnover in staff in over 20 years! New teachers had to establish a bond between themselves and the students, and with veteran staff members—a difficult task in anyone's book. It was a year when school and staff faced the scrutiny of North Central Evaluation, and a year when the administration implemented and defended new school policy changes.

Despite all these new challenges, it was the hard work, dedication, patience and understanding that enabled us to bridge the gap that stood before us. Whether it was athletics or academics, we succeeded in a school environment that is committed to excellence. It has been a memorable year, and one in which each one of us will find at least a few memories worth saving. So enjoy the words and pictures of the 82nd edition of Zenith, and let us forever remind you of how we "bridged the gap" in 1992.

Courtney Bartel and Jason Miller enjoy life as Seniors.

Bridging the Gender Gap

In the AIDS age you might have thought that teenage hormones might not be running freely. Think again. Dating is still a very popular pastime among teens of the nation, and, of course, Chagrin is no exception. Granted, our school is small, and it might be tough for the guy to find the dream date, or for the girl to find the perfect mate, but it's still big enough for a chance at romance.

We decided to hit the hallways and find out more about the dating scene in Chagrin. We found that first dates are way up on the list of most uncomfortable things to do, that is if you can get that first date. We also found a little apprehension about the dating scene as well. "There is no dating scene," grunted Larry Biscotti. Others responded in a similar fashion, "It's non-existent"; "Don't ask me, I'm a freshman"; "It stinks...".

Well, I decided to take a different tactic. "Let's just pretend that you see a young lady or guy, just exactly what does one say to break the ice for the first time?" Responses varied: "How's my hair?"; "I'm friends with John Rutkowski," and "How about some fries to go with that shake?" Not exactly what I was hunting for. Maybe what was needed was a more stealthy approach to this one. I hung back in the shadows of the commons for a little while and finally I was witness to some first-hand honest-to-goodness real action. "Were you staring at me?"...a nifty little starter shot out by Brad McFarland... Nothing... Guys 0- Girls 1.

I decided to follow Smith Weir on his adventures across the cafeteria towards some unknown females. I see the girls smiling. Yes, Smitty, go for it. "Do you know I'm a Kennedy?" Oh, that was awful! Crash and burn. Guys 0- Girls 2. Chagrin girls are tough-no doubt about it. There has to be someone who can at least get a phone number. Some suave master. Just then it all fell together so perfectly, as if from an act of a higher being. Casey Gates drifted into the room, talking to no one. This was a man with a mission. He sees a flock of girls fifty feet off the starboard bow, and sets his sights right on 'em. Before I can gasp a warning to the unsuspecting ladies, Gates is feeding them lines. I cautiously move in and overhear one: "Hey, did you know I'm from Alaska?" That was it...success at last! Final score: Guys 1- Girls 2. A shutout is avoided! The barrier is down. Another bridge is crossed.

"... I was witness to some first-hand...real action."

- Jon Sachtjen

Homecoming '91

Rally, Burn, Play, and Dance

As everyone gathered in the middle school parking lot, on Thursday evening, the Homecoming weekend began. Cars, trucks, and jeeps filled with anxious athletes and students drove up to the high school in the annual Homecoming parade. The pep-rally helped to raise spirits and cheer on the various CFHS teams. Interrupting the pep-rally, the bonfire began to blaze and attract a large crowd of Chagrinites. Friday night was filled with even more activities, such as the tailgate party, the big game, and the crowning of the Homecoming queen. Anticipation was high, as were the spirits of the Tigers. However, the gridders were defeated by the Hilltoppers of Chardon in a hard played game. Tiggy Hopkins was crowned Homecoming queen 1991, along with her court of Courtney Bartel, Karis Gibbs, Elli Giebeitis, Chesie Salyers, and Casey Abley. Saturday held the varsity soccer game against U.S., but, unfortunately, the Tigers faced another defeat. However, that night the Homecoming dance closed the weekend off nicely. The high school commons was rockin', and as usual most of the people had a great time. Homecoming weekend doesn't always hold the greatest victories or the best parties of the year, but it definitely brings out the spirit of the TIGERS!

Spirit: We've Got It. So Let's Hear It!

The student body of Chagrin Falls has long been one of the most spirited groups in the CVC. Not a sporting event goes by where the cry of "Tiger Power" isn't heard. Whether it be a Friday night football game with Chagrinites all around, or the chanting from the infamous zoo, they each exemplify the spirit and enthusiasm of the Tigers. When an athlete looks behind him and sees a bunch of hopeful faces, all yelling for him, it provides a sense of encouragement. That's just the type of environment C.F.H.S. is made of.

A lot of other schools tend to mock Chagrin occasionally- whether it's because of our size, or because of some of the not-so-impressive sports records. But perhaps we possess something of much more value: we're supported by all sorts of Tiger natives. And hey, who was it that had a gymnast, some wrestlers, a track relay, and a tennis player to state? And what school became the 1991 AA Girls Cross Country Champions? Like the cheerleaders say, "We've got what, what, what?--- we've got SPIRIT !"

Winter Formal

City Holiday Extravaganza

On Saturday, December 14, 1991, the Chagrin Falls Cheerleaders sponsored the annual Winter Formal in the High School Commons. This year's theme, "City Holiday", featured all the festive looks of a winter in the city. The Cheerleaders spent countless hours preparing the Commons for the special event. The student body voted the annual Senior Winter Formal King. This year's highness was Michael Krock, who after being presented the crown, lead the next dance with his date Melissa Jo Lambeth. Senior Jason Largey said, "The decorations were great. My compliments to the cheerleaders. It was the best dance I ever attended...a great night." Jon Sachtjen said, "Never have I seen such a plethora of women in tight, black dresses. It was awesome."

1. Mike Voss bellows, "I'll have her home by 8:00." Yeah right.
2. King Krok's basking in the glory of his finest hour.
3. Dateless underclassmen Brad Cornell and Andy Bergman find solace in each other's company.

Fall's Footlighters present

Rebel Without a Cause

"Rebel Without a Cause" is a story set in the 1950's. It is a powerful story telling the timeless tale of Judy Brown (Lydian DeVere), Buzz Gunderson (Jason Smith), Jim Stark (Jason Largey), and Plato (Steve Salvador) struggling to find their identities amidst an adult world that misunderstands them. The action centers on Jim who just moved to a new town to start over. He befriends Judy and Plato, but falls into trouble with other students and gangs at his new school.

When a chicken race between Jim and Buzz fatally takes Buzz's life, Jim tries to reach out for help. His cry for help is heard by Plato and Judy who comfort him and help him through this ordeal. After viewing their rendition of this time tested classic, the general concensus among everyone who went to the play was that it was masterfully done. The director, Rosemary Nemunaitis, didn't miss a beat when she took over for long time director George Kaschak, and she was able to bring about a new enthusiasm for the school play never before present at the high school. Furthermore, the actors played their parts with such emotion and vigor that the play appeared to be almost a professional production rather than a high school one. This, coupled with an extremely appreciative audience, made for one of the most entertaining and enjoyable viewings of the high school's annual fall play in years.

A Bloody Good Day

The bulletin board at the high school said, "We want to suck your blood" and they did just that at the annual blood drive of 1991-92. During the week preceding the drive, signs were posted all over the school in order to attract as many donors as possible. Although the drive's goal was to drain seventy pints of blood from the many donors, the sixty-five pints given were phenomenal, considering the odds against succeeding. These odds consisted of the fact that senior enrollment was down about thirty students this year, and also the fact that the football players and cross-country runners could not give blood due to upcoming meets. As to the personal working the drive, this year instead of vampires the halls of the high school were graced with the presence of "Super Jason" and "Super Clay," who along with Jon Sachtjen stole students who were willing to leave class and escorted them into the back gym, to donate their blood. Hopefully next year will be even more successful on Halloween, and more blood will be donated by CFHS students, or else we just may have to bring back those vampires.

Bridging the SIZE Gap

"Wow, look at the size of their team!" These were usually the first thoughts that ran through the minds of most Chagrin teams when they began the CVC portion of their schedules in past years. But this year all that changed. Chagrin Falls High School, once the proverbial doormat for schools as much as twice its size, bridged the size gap and became the one knocking on the door.

During the fall sports season this change in competitiveness began to show through and Chagrin emerged as a CVC power. We all witnessed history in the making as the golf team, in a CVC first, went undefeated and ultimately headed down to Columbus to compete for the state title. Chagrin had two runner-ups at state in the fall season sports: Karis Gibbs, in tennis, and Brady Portaro, in golf. If that doesn't convince our fellow CVC brethren, they need only look at the girls' cross country team. This year they ended a twenty-year drought and brought the state title back to Chagrin Falls. They did not just win the state title, they dominated, destroyed, and basically decimated the field in winning by 30 points. Chagrin hasn't had this much to celebrate, since the glory days of '69, Johnny P. (22), and that Football game in 1987. So this year Chagrin is back! We knocked on the door, and much to the surprise of everyone, we were forced to kick it down.

Gridders Rebound to .500 Season

Within one year the Tiger gridders brought their dismal record of three wins and seven losses up to a respectable 5-5 mark with three of their losses being by a touchdown or less. The team was lead by a solid nucleus of seniors, several of whom were returning to the varsity team for their third year, along with a core of extremely capable juniors and sophomores. Defense proved to be the key to the team's success, holding their opponents to very few points in an outstanding Chagrin Valley Conference. Senior safety Mike Chess led the county with a team high 6 interceptions as the Tiger defense posted an outstanding plus fifteen turnover ratio and outscored their opponents by 54 points in their first three games. However, plagued by a number of injuries, the team's offense was inconsistent from there on. Their final record of five wins and five losses earned respect for the Tigers at a time when Chagrin must face opponents up to two and one-half times their size.

1. Stiff-arming a would-be tackler, Tiger full-back Ryan Trautman rambles on for more yardage.

2. Chagrin quarterback Mike Chess, calls an audible at the line of scrimmage, as the Tiger offense gets ready to move the ball against the West Geauga defense.

3. Ben Ehrenbeit gets examined by a team trainer and Dr. Anderson during a key CVC matchup.

4. Tailback Bob Rode eludes a Chardon defender on route to a big gain during the Tigers 6-3 loss to the Hilltoppers.

Boys' Soccer

Tiger Booters Surprise Opponents

The Varsity Boys Soccer Team had a good season, despite lack of many experienced players. The team was very young, with only five Seniors. What they lacked in age, they made up for with effort. They finished the regular season with a record of 9-6 with a 5-2 mark in the CVC. As usual, the Tigers had a very competitive schedule, playing such soccer powers as Walsh Jesuit, Western Reserve, Shaker Heights, and of course University School. Led by Junior captain Casey Dustin, the Tigers continued to improve throughout the season. They finished off the regular season with two impressive victories over Kenston and Beechwood, and were ready for the playoffs. The first game of the Sectionals put them up against a strong Revere, which they held off for a 2-0 victory. The second game saw the Tigers defeat Orange in an exciting overtime score of 2-1. Unfortunately, the Tigers fell to University in the District semifinals ending another impressive season. The Tigers Varsity Soccer team has nowhere to go but up. With the majority of the players returning for more than one year, the Tigers should be the team to beat in future years.

Girls' Soccer

Girl's Soccer Makes Strong Showing: 11-1-4

With the loss of many four year letter winners and only one returning Senior, it might have seemed that the Lady Tiger Soccer Team was in for a tough season. This, however, was not the case. They started off with four consecutive home victories before their first and only defeat of the regular season to Eastlake North. Their final record for the regular season was 11 wins, one loss, and four ties. One tie came against Kenston ending a career of defeats for the Tigers. Unfortunately, despite a very strong season, the Lady Booters lost in their first Sectional game to a strong Poland team. The Lady Tigers have a young team and with everyone returning except Senior Ellen Galey, the Tigers promise to be a contender next year.

Girls Cross Country 1991 State Champions

Back On Top

In 1971 Chagrin Falls earned its first state championship. Now, twenty years later, that achievement has been duplicated. The 1991 girls cross country team led by four first team All-CVC selections is undoubtedly the greatest girls team ever assembled in Chagrin Falls history. They did not merely win the Division II State Crown; they completely dominated the field in coasting to an easy thirty point margin of victory. Coach Olah was quoted as saying, "We were confident coming in." This confidence was due to the experience of senior standouts Elizabeth Hopkins and Amy Michel, Junior, All-Ohio selection Courtney Michel, and the emergence of freshman Courtney DeGross. Also, Don't count on the tigers being any weaker next season even though they lose two runners to graduation. Improvement on the part of both Courtneys and help from a strong freshman class should pick up the slack and help place the tigers in state contention once again.

Boy's Cross Country

Although the boy's cross country team was not able to duplicate the success of the girls team, they did accomplish a great deal during their season. Led by junior Jim Vickers the tigers roared to a strong sixth place finish in the tough CVC and were Sectional Runner-ups. Vickers himself took sixth at the conference meet and earned All-CVC honors. Furthermore, The future looks bright for these tigers who only loose one member to graduation. Consequently, the tigers should be greatly improved next season.

Volleyball

Spiking the Competition

The 1991 Girls Varsity Volleyball team did not have a winning record but they gave their opponents some tough competition. The Lady Tigers struggled from the start to adapt to a new coach and replace four of last year's starters who were lost to graduation. The lone returning starter for the Tigers this season was senior Katy Hagen who turned in a stellar performance on her way to being named to the First Team All-District Team and being selected to participate in an all-star game at Cleveland State University. Hagen's phenomenal play, coupled with the emergence of seniors Lauren Davidson and Kristen Barnhouse, keyed the Tigers to several important victories over powerhouses such as Kenston and Chardon. These victories and the experience gained by underclassman should contribute to a more positive attitude and a more successful season next year.

Golfers Take Fourth in State

The Chagrin Golf team definitely left an impression upon the area this year. With the return of many key players, the team was confident that they would have a chance at the State Championship this year. Brady Portaro, Sam Calabrese, Chad Gibbs and Senior Todd Krause formed the center of the team, with other members of the team filling in as the fifth man. With the help of Mr. Howell, the head coach, the Tigers ended the regular season undefeated in the CVC. Also, the Tigers defeated last years State Champions, University School. On October 1, the Tigers brought home the Sectional trophy, and on October 10, they captured third place in the districts to advance to the state meet. The Tigers eventually tied for fourth in State but lost the tiebreaker and recieved fifth. However, Brady Portaro received State runner-up, and All State honors. The Tigers golf team will be strong next year with the return of Brady, Chad, and Sam. Again they will promise to be a fierce competitor in the league.

Tennis

The Girls Tennis team was very strong this year as a team, as well as individually. With five returning letter winners, as well as many new faces on the team, the Tigers promised to have a very good season. The girls did very well in the CVC, and played competitively in other area play. They had a very difficult schedule, playing such teams as Orange, Hawken, and Hathaway Brown. This did not stop them from ending the season with a winning record. Aside from their success as a team, they also had excellent individual players. Karis Gibbs, a four year letter winner and team captain, won the Sectional tournament in post-season play, and eventually placed second in State. Although the girls will lose five Seniors this year, they still promise to be strong in the future with Juniors Courtney Munson and Jenny Lind returning for next year. With these players, as well as other younger players, the Tigers promise to be very competitive in the future.

The Tradition Lives On

Filling the shoes of last year's sectional champs A.K.A. the guys who "Rebuilt the Tradition" is not going to be an easy task for this year's Tiger basketball team. However, so far this year, they appear to be up to the challenge in a conference that from top to bottom looks as tough as ever. If one could pick out a single reason for the continued success of this year's cagers, it would have to be depth. Solid throughout, the '91-'92 Tiger basketball team loses little, if anything at all, when it goes to the bench for the depth that enables the Tigers to play as they do. Each of the Tigers, Weber, Salyers, Norton, are like a smaller version of Ohio State's continually hustling Chris Jent. Diving, fighting, scrapping for the win, there are no outstanding individuals, no high scorers, just team players on the Tiger basketball squad this year. And each individual is like a component of a finally tuned machine, if you will, that methodically churns out marks in the win column. This year, as they continue to chalk up wins, the Tigers have not gone unnoticed. They were asked to play against Orange at the Coliseum prior to a CAVS game. Parents, siblings, and members of the infamous ZOO had courtside seats for the game in what was yet another outstanding CVC match-up. As tournament time rolls around the Tigers are prepared to pounce on any unsuspecting teams and claim the sectional or even district titles which appear well within their grasp.

Girls' Basketball Improves with Season

This year's girls' basketball team was left with the unenviable task of continuing the legacy left behind by the departure of coach Robert Ohlrich. With only three seniors on the team, new head coach Frank Phillips really had his work cut out for him. Consequently, the team did take its lumps from several state ranked teams such as West Geauga at the beginning of the season.

However, Coach Phillips remained enthusiastic about his team. That enthusiasm combined with good senior leadership brought the Tigers a new tenacious style of play that earned them four victories in the tough CVC. At press time, with the season's end fast approaching, these Lady Tigers appear to be much improved and a definite threat going into state competition.

7. With the grace of a seal, Amy Exline dives for a loose ball against West Geauga.

Young Matmen Come Alive!

Much like last year's basketball team, this year's wrestling squad was left with the unenviable task of rebuilding the tradition. Having lost four key seniors to graduation, the team is being hard pressed to match the success of the past two years in which they were sectional champions and runner-ups. However, the return of three seniors, Nick Sommer, Mike Esposito, and Micah Sanders has helped soften the blow. At press time, Sommer and Junior heavyweight Mike Voss are currently among the top area wrestlers in their respective weight classes. Consequently, the Tiger matmen have come alive as of late in winning bouts with both Wickliffe and Orange. As sectional time nears, it appears that several tiger matmen are well on their way to qualifying for districts and eventually even state.

Gymnastics

Vaulting to Victory

Although at the outset of the season a cloud of uncertainty hovered over the Chagrin Falls gymnastic team, at press time the tigers had dispelled that cloud and proven themselves competitors in the rugged CVC. Bolstered by the return of three-time state qualifier Rachel Freshman and returning letterman Lori Bruce, these young tigers really began to roar about midway through the season. They almost upset perennial powerhouse of West Geauga and came within two points of setting a new school record for team score. Not only did the tigers excel as a team, but Freshman also set a new school record in the all-around. With the continued success of their two senior leaders, and the improvement of the large underclassman contingent supporting them, the tigers led to a tremendous season overall.

1. Lori Bruce tries to convince the judges that her routine deserves a "10."

Swimming

Splish, Splashing Away

The swimmers this year had to continue to fight against the odds. Since Chagrin doesn't have an indoor pool, the girls had to travel nightly to Gilmour Academy to be with their coach Wally Lutkus. There the girls practiced five nights a week swimming an average 200 laps a night.

Though the girls practiced long and hard and had a pool full of talent, their record does not reflect this. With the lack of divers on the team, the meets came down to the last few races and they never seemed to fall in Chagrin's favor.

The team can't boast a terrific record but they can brag about their accomplishments. This year, four girls qualified for the Viking Classic Invitational swim meet; the 200 Medley Relay team of Alyssa Wells, Allyson Klebes, Kathleen Holtz, and Kerry Schoelch and Kathleen Holtz in the 100 breast- both races finishing in the top 25. Then Coach Lutkus brought 13 girls downtown to C.S.U. for the North North-East Swimming districts. The team all reported personal best times not only making themselves proud, but the team, the school, and Coach Lutkus.

Seniors: We're Outta Here

Well here we are finally the head honchos of not only the entire high school, but the entire school district. All of us have talked about this ever since grade school. We have dreamed of being the oldest, the biggest, and the one's people look up to. Now that we are here, big deal. Everyone is the same, we have no special rights and no special privileges, (oh except we have the distinct privilege of sitting on the gymnasium floor during pep rallies, assemblies, and other special events).

As Seniors, we should have the inalienable right to drive home for lunch, have our own designated parking lot, haze any freshmen that is acting out of line, and we should be able to do whatever we please in the "Senior Lounge" (except for the S word and the D word, for those of you with dirty minds that's smoking and dipping). But for some odd reason our dreams of having the life of luxury seemed to diminish like the Browns in the AFC Championship games versus the Broncos.

But as Seniors we learned to cope with these misfortunes, and bonded together as a fairly tight-knit group that enjoyed each others' company throughout the year. For the first time, many cliques were broken up and the Class of 1992 joined together to have some of the best times of their high school tenure.

The Class came out in full force at athletic contests showing their school spirit and being an example for the underclassmen. This school spirit has carried over from last year's athletic successes. Painting faces, making t-shirts, decorating houses (with toilet paper) and just encouraging their fellow student athletes, really kept the school spirit fire burning.

The parties of course got hotter and hotter and hotter as the year went by (and unfortunately more and more people got busted). Oh, by the way, our regrets go out to those who suffered damages to pool tables, ping pong tables, etc., during the festive occasions. Despite these minor setbacks, the Class of 1992 partied with more vigor as graduation approached.

The Class of '92 not only had the best athletes in recent years (football, soccer, and that running sport that just happened to have won state), but we also had the best hilljacks, this side of West Virginia. The bonfire made by pyromaniacs Mobley, Norton, Shellgren, Tarczy, and Hall was the biggest in the history of the school. The parade was a great success as the football team was capable of only ruining two trucks this year. As the pumpkin season approached the seniors (with a little help from the juniors) collected the pumpkins. Unfortunately, as a senior Hawk found out, the neighboring villages did not appreciate the pumpkin poachers. One group of seniors found the much fabled Great Pumpkin, which weighed over 500 pounds. Unfortunately, it never made it to the roll.

Academically, we plugged along, having loads of fun in class and having nervous breakdowns when it was time to receive our notification of acceptance or rejection from our dream colleges. After getting in it was time to kick back and relax and pull C's in those classes in which either we passed or spent another year in this beloved place (except for everybody's favorite class Trigonometry).

In all, the years at Chagrin have been some of the best years we will experience in our lives. Chagrin Falls High School gave us a time to be with friends, a time to learn not only what books offer, but what unique individuals can teach you, a time to have a personal and special relationship with teachers and administrators, and a time to just enjoy each others company.

But now it is time to move on, which has its pros and cons. Whether you loved it or hated it, no one who experienced it will forget Chagrin Falls High School.

Forever and ever Amen.

Spanning the Years

People, that is what Chagrin Falls High School is all about. If someone was to examine the people of Chagrin they would find that diversity and uniqueness are the two words that best characterize us all. However, everyone here, no matter how unique, has something in common, a bond that links us all together.

We all began here as lowly freshmen and suffered through the times and trials of the supposedly terrible 9th grade year. Undoubtedly that year is the one that had the greatest impact on all of us. The horror stories of what happened to previous freshman at the high school were found out to be false as we were introduced to an exciting, new lifestyle full of challenges. However, a price was paid for the chance to participate in these new activities.

We all had to or are currently enduring that inevitable label of "Frosh" and suffering all the abuse that accompanies it (having your locker searched for the always delicious lunch that all freshmen seem to pack). In the end, though, we all emerged unscathed, ready to shed the name "freshmen" and move on to bigger and better things.

The thing we all did not know, however, was those bigger, better things definitely did not come during sophomore year. Besides finally being able to drive, sophomore year pretty much entailed sitting around and doing nothing. It was not until our junior year that everything started to fall into place. Parties, commons, and more freedom were all a part of junior year. This, along with the added pressure of the college search is what made that year the most hectic one of our high school careers. But fear not, once the search is completed, it is time to move to the big time. Senior year, a time to beat the application deadlines and then to kick back and watch life go by. It is the culmination of our high school careers, the apex, so to speak. Reminiscing back on all the times, both good and bad, we all realize that we share a common bond with everyone. We all can relate to one another because most of us have been through it all before. We have gone to hell and back together and that is what links the upper and under classmen together. In this way, freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors seemed to relate to each other

this year providing for one of the most memorable years at the high school.

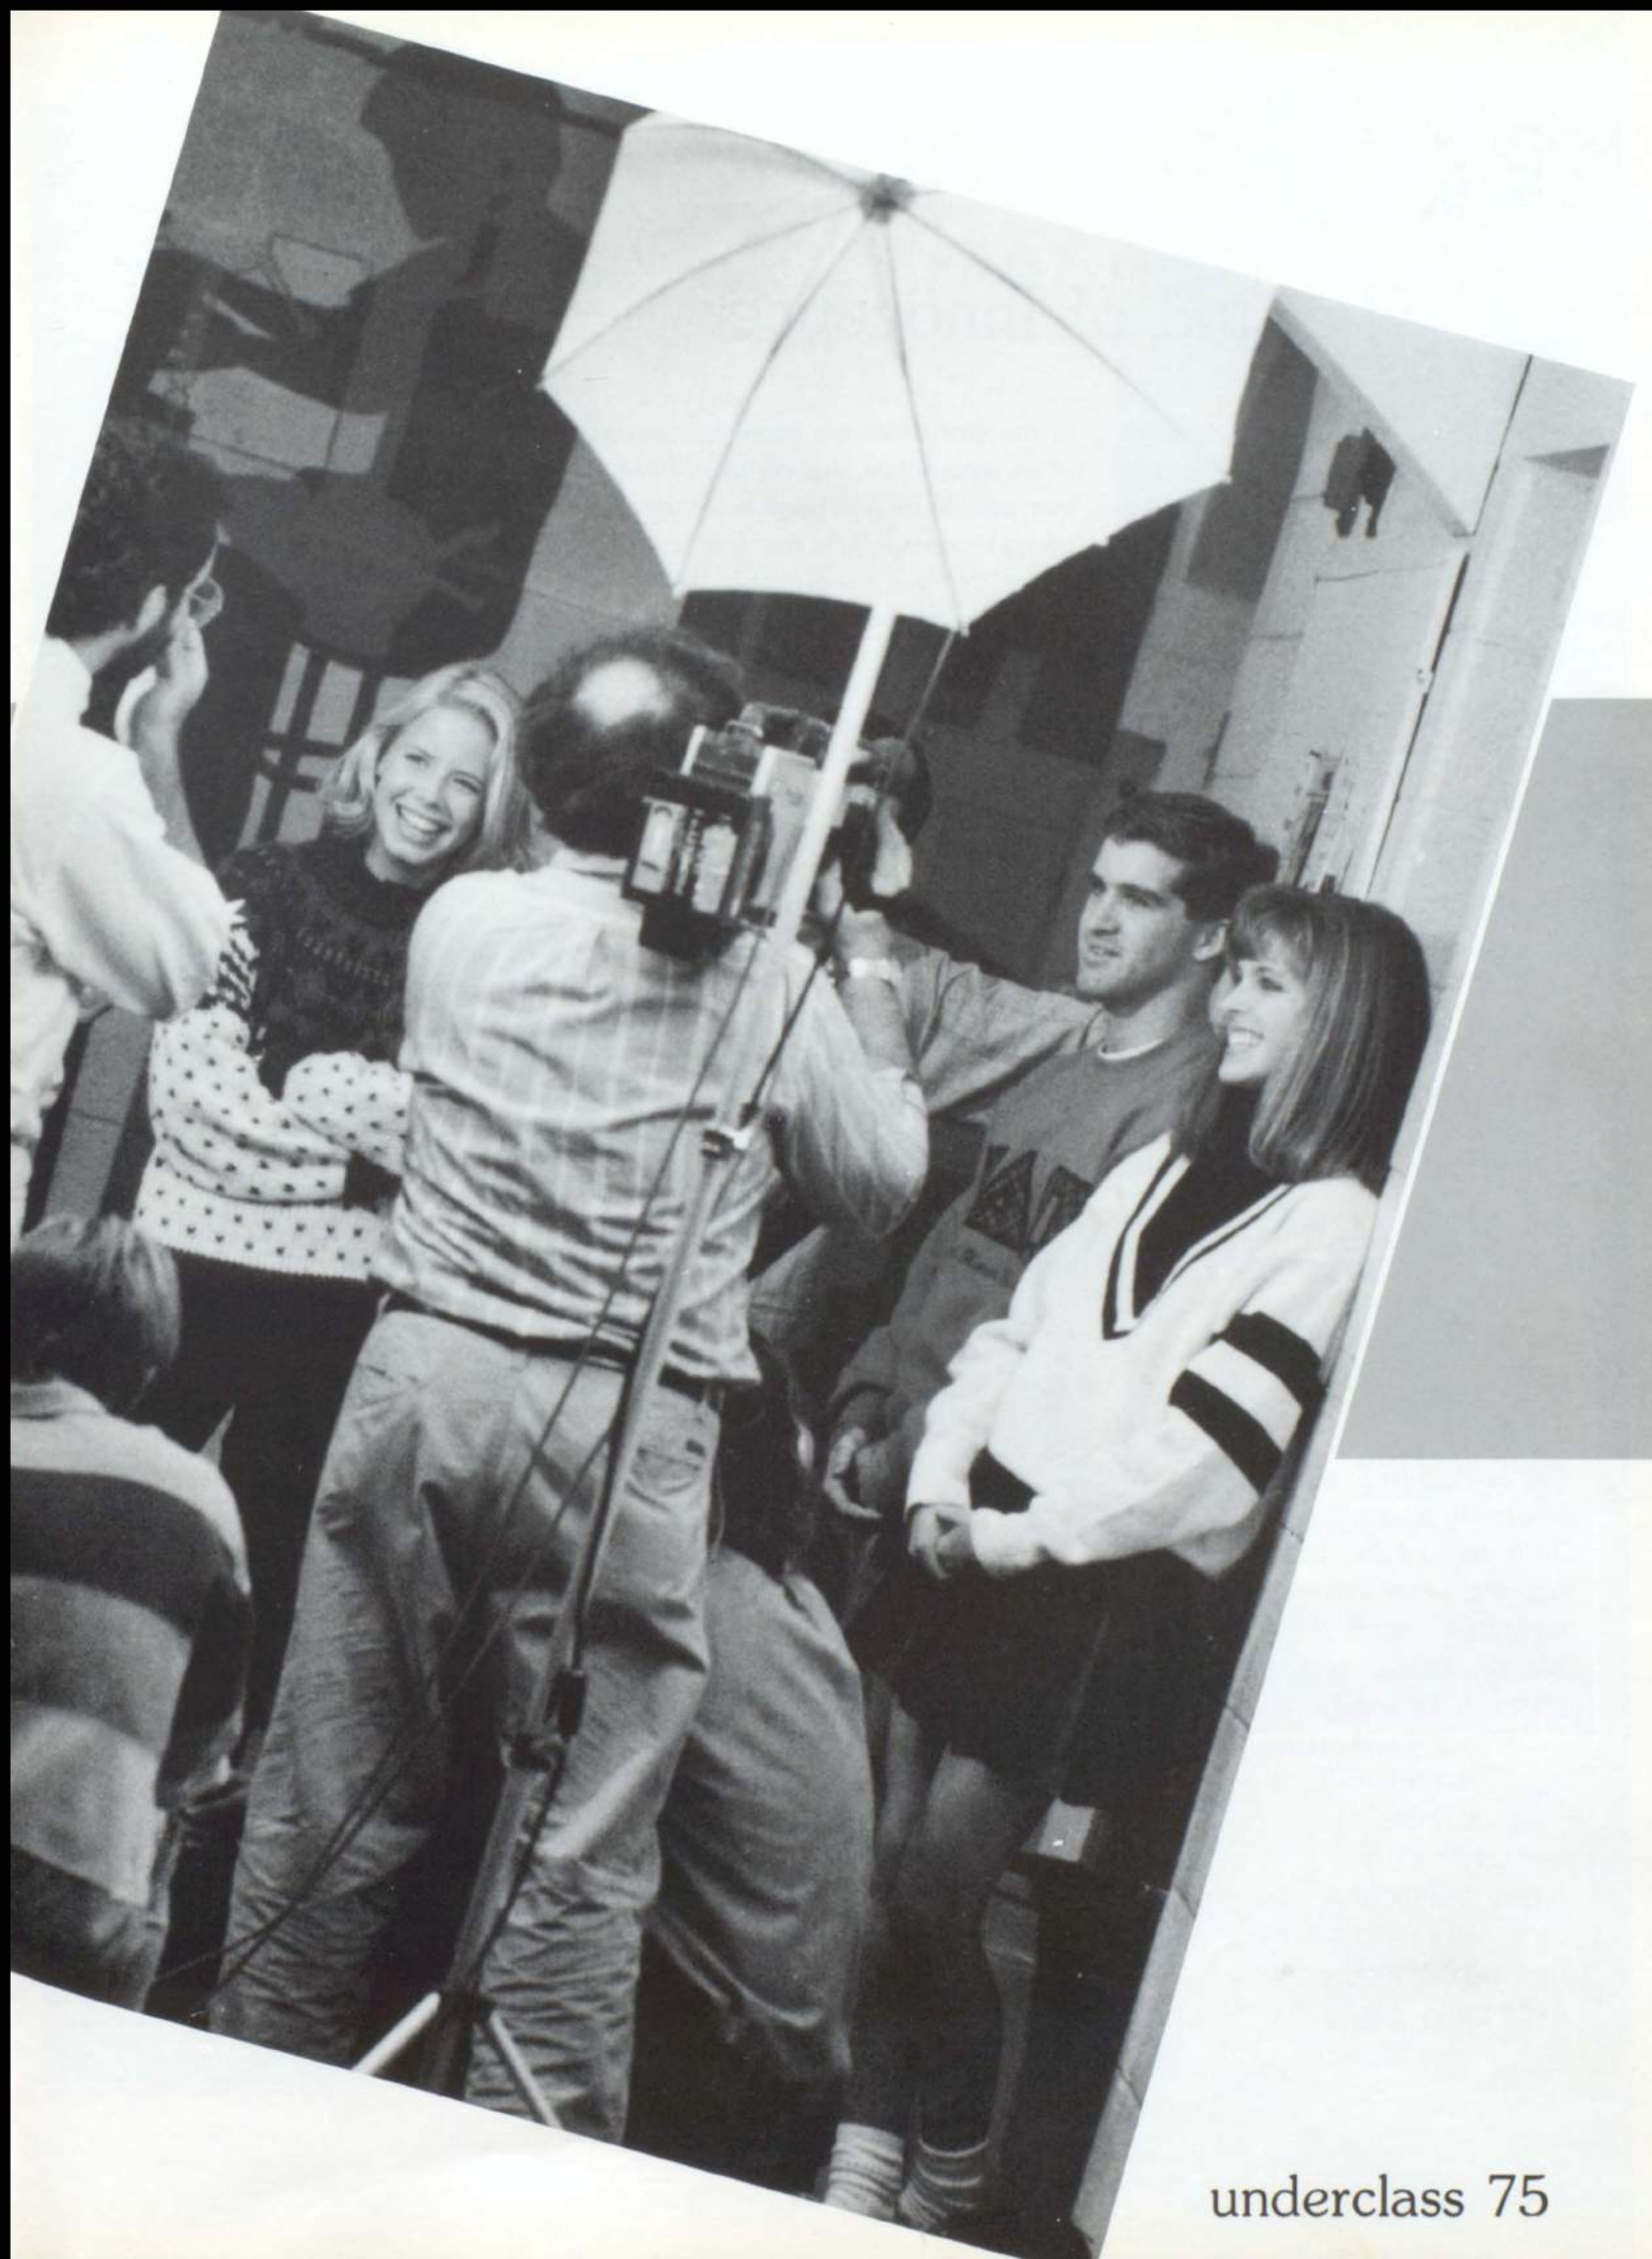

By Mike Esposito

"Enduring the inevitable label of Frosh" - Ryan Sears, Mindi Sanders, and Casey Abley.

Jenny Dallas, Mike Krok, and Sara Tervo wait to be interviewed by MTV's "Like We Care."

Juniors

The End of Innocence

Starting to live on the edge is what life as a Junior is all about. It is the time we make important decisions that will affect the rest of our lives. Whether we succeed or fail, may very well depend on the decisions that we have made during our Junior year. We must make social, educational, and moral decisions dealing with friendships, dating, and peer influence. We must begin thinking about college and which ones are suitable to our needs. We have our first serious head to head conference with our counselor, knowing full well that the college decisions that we make will affect our future career choice.

The Junior year is a period of transition and maturation in learning to accept and deal with responsibility. We begin to break away from the upper hand of our parents; they begin to listen to our side of the story. We are given the freedom of an automobile and we even have our own parking lot. We begin to sweat about taking those S.A.T.'s; that four hour brain teaser that we will probably take twice. Moreover, we begin to sweat the scores.

On the social end of it, we have that unnerving choice of who to ask to prom, risking possible rejection. Then we have other decisions to make. Should I get a limo, and how will I pay for it? And what about the Pumpkin Roll? Will I get arrested? Where do all those pumpkins come from, and how do we get them? They aren't stolen are they? Such intense thoughts flood our minds. The Junior year is the beginning of REAL high school life. It is a time of change. It is the beginning of independence and the end of innocence.

The Sophomore Year: an Exercise in Frustration

What is sophomore year really like? The point where we are no longer aimless freshmen, but we're not upperclassmen either. One gets the feeling of being trapped.

But, there is a lighter side to this. A few things happen—emphasize a few—to sophomores that are unique to the year.

Of course, one is the infamous drivers license. That one day all of us look forward to at least a year in advance. "It's a real thrill!" exclaims Kristin Bochik concerning her license. Surviving the tedious classes and the long wait for a temp seems little price to pay for that great reward - the ability to drive—legally.

Also unique to sophomore year is that semester of sheer enjoyment—health class! (NOT) That's right, health; the class designed merely for sophomore pleasure. Such things as sucking face with dummies, and "other thrilling events" add to the excitement. One may include watching the special films that enhance the appetite. "I really enjoy sex education, except I'm failing it," says Jenny Stinson in regard to her health class experiences. Health is an utter requirement to top off the intense sophomore year.

These might be a couple of answers to that grueling question, "What is sophomore year really about?"

Freshmen

Starting Over Again

What's full of hundreds of new faces and mile long hallways? Chagrin Falls High School through the eyes of a freshman. Although it seems outrageous, adjusting to the high school does not take too long. Kara Hultin replies, "The teachers are very understanding the first week, they help out a lot." The hardest part of switching schools is that the freshmen are no longer the "gods" of the middle school and they are now at the bottom of the totem pole.

Besides a new environment and new faces, students actually look forward to going to school. "The best part is that we get to see new people, especially guys," said Amy Stark. "The days go by a lot faster at the high school because it is more fun and there is more freedom," explains Lindsay See.

Generally the feeling among freshman is that of excitement, wonder, and curiosity. The long awaited gym class swimming is revealed in the beginning of their freshman year. Kara Hultin tells that the "swimming in gym was not as bad as I thought it would be." Steven Frappier adds that, "a good thing about the high school is that the dances are a lot more fun compared to the middle school, especially this year's Homecoming.

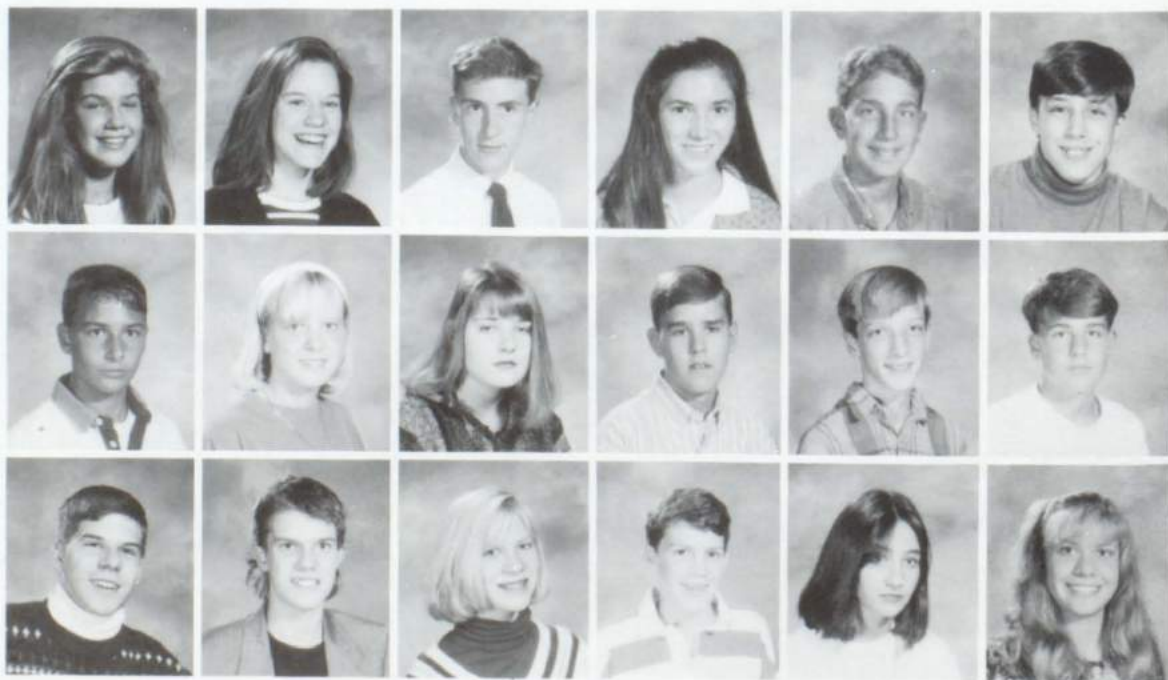

At the conclusion of the freshman year, the hundreds of new faces turn into hundreds of familiar faces, and the mile long hallways no longer seem so long.

Filling the Testing Gap

My heart races like crazy. My fingers tremble, my eyeballs jump from side to side. I have a strange inclination to jump up and run, but there is no way out—there is no escape from the world of testing. Most of us encounter it nearly every day of the school year. For some it's nothing, just another technicality on the way to another "A". For me, it's nothing short of pure terror.

Okay, maybe I am overstating it somewhat, but the reality is that so much depends on testing, and the number of tests seems to be exploding as of late. Even when I was young, I can remember those CAT's jumping out at me from time to time. "What's going to happen to me if I mess up?" I once asked. "You'll have to go to school on Saturday for the rest of your life," my brother teased. "Purely diagnostic," my teacher said. I thought I had a disease. In high school came the ACT's and SAT's, those long, tedious, brain teasers where my future hinged on some computer processed pencil marks on a piece of paper. I always had the hope that mine might get mixed up with that really smart girl with glasses sitting across from me. It didn't happen. And now there are those state proficiency and competency exams that politicians, in their infinite wisdom, have determined as the best way to cure the ills of public education. When I asked Chad Schron to comment on the tests, he said "They asked you where Cleveland is and only one of the possible location choices was in Ohio." So for five or ten days a year we have wholesale testing with predictable results: The kids who do well in class, pass; those who don't, don't. I could have told them that, and saved them a lot of money.

Now there's even classes that I can take so that I can learn how to answer questions that I wasn't supposed to understand in the first place. That way, if I do well, I can fool everybody into thinking that I'm smarter than I really am. Does this make sense? Of course we still have those infamous semester final exams (newly implemented this year).

The very sound of the words sends chills up my spine and I'm overcome by a nauseous feeling. If I didn't understand it at the end of the first week, What makes them think I'm going to remember it after eighteen weeks? Well I guess teachers have been giving tests since the beginning of time, and they, the school, the State, or whoever will continue to monitor our progress. But I just wonder if the really great teachers of history ever tested. Plato? Socrates? Jesus? Buddha? Ghandi? I would have hated to see

English

On the Cutting Edge

This year's English department serves up a diversity of knowledge and expertise. Leonard Balk, Lenny May, John Ponikvar, Karen Kipp, and Rosemary Nemunitus are the components of a staff that is on the cutting edge of education. Always searching for new, innovative ways to keep learning enjoyable, these teachers employ a wide variety of techniques to add a little excitement to their everyday classes. Acting out plays in class, performing skits, publishing, debating important moral issues of the day, and as was the case this year, taking students to see renditions of plays are excellent examples of how the department keeps learning fun. The aforementioned play that students journeyed to see this year was "Uncle Vanya" starring Hal Holbrook. Upon seeing the performance one student was quoted as saying, "I really enjoyed it and at the same time I learned more about Chekhov. There's no substitute for seeing the real thing being performed live." It is these types of progressive teaching methods that have lifted the English Department to the top of the list.

Biology Classes Go Streamside

Students searched eagerly through the murky waters at Squaw Rock. Their purpose, to find and examine the creatures which dwell in the river. Their teacher and guide through the perilous expedition was Mr. Furst. Among some of the creatures which the fearless students encountered were crayfish, mayfly nymphs, and minnows. To capture the creatures the students had a plan and this is how it went: upstream, rock kickers would kick the rocks below them forcing them downstream into the students who eagerly waited with nets. Once the students' nets were full of critters, the students would bring the nets on shore where the critter pickers, (students with tweezers) would pick the critters up and put them into containers. Once the critters were in the containers they were taken back to the school and examined under stereoscopes to observe and determine exactly what they were. After this was done some of the creatures like the minnows were put into the class aquarium, where they would be observed. The rest of the creatures were released back to the river to roam and frolic freely throughout their aquatic home.

Mathematics

Teaching Life

Intensity, uniqueness and diversity are three words that best describe the mathematics department. Stressing mottos such as "commit to excellence" and "thirst for knowledge", teachers push their pupils and encourage them to strive towards perfection. In order to motivate students each teacher takes his own type of approach. Some stress pinpoint accuracy and pop quizzes while others tend to grant students more leeway and thereby make them more responsible for themselves. These differences in teaching styles let students experience a college-like atmosphere and force them to adapt to each individual style just as they will have to do in the real world. The mathematics department not only teaches students a lesson in mathematics it also teaches them a lesson in life.

Foreign Language

Providing Cultural Enrichment

The foreign language department of Chagrin Falls High School offers the opportunity to students to learn three different languages. The language classes teach grammar and vocabulary and take an indepth look into foreign cultures. This gives the students a chance to learn a new and different language and also a chance to be acquainted with other cultures.

The three languages offered are: French, Spanish, and German. All of the teachers for these courses hold the same philosophies about teaching. They believe that a language should be taught in a relaxed environment with a lot of open discussion. The teachers all believe in a combination of fun and intensity. The classes incorporate songs, movies, poetry and art into their curriculums, as well as the fundamental course work. As Mr. Gerhardt says: "I feel that my goal as a teacher is to keep the students as long as possible (hopefully for four years) and for the students to enjoy the language and the culture. However, a balance must exist between enjoyment and proficiency."

Social Studies

Starting from Scratch

This year's social studies department received a boost from the hiring of a number of fresh, new faces. Gone are some of Chagrin's most respected staff members and replacing them are a host of rookie teachers paving the way to a better education. Blazing the trail, veteran teacher and ex-marine, Bill Fordyce; department head and field commander, Frank Phillips; support personnel, Phyllis Patton, and bringing up the rear, the drill sergeant, Bruce Johnson. Though there are many goals ahead for this fine, young department to meet, Mr. Phillips commented on one of the staff's more immediate goals in saying, "I wish to continue the successes of the past and expand the social studies curriculum in the future." The new members of the department feel that Chagrin is a significant change from where they taught before. Mr. Phillips also comments that, "Chagrin is smaller and easier in terms of the classes, though more difficult in the amount of questions asked because of the comfortable atmosphere in the classroom." With all this in mind, the social studies department should be looking forward to an extremely successful year with more to come.

Physical Education

Physical education at the high school has changed drastically in regards to last years curriculum, and so far the change appears to be one for the better. The longtime tradition of taking upperclassmen bowling during gym periods is no longer in effect, due to the closing of Colonial Lanes and a new policy adapted by the administration in regard to athletes and gym. Students who participate in school related sports now have the option to opt out of physical education. Four semesters of physical education must be completed before graduation. A student may currently be excused from gym class by participating in an afterschool intramural or varsity sport. The results of this welcome change have been tremendous. Athletes now are able to get more of their studying and homework completed in school, instead of having extensive work to do at home. Consequently, student athletes have been achieving higher grades and are under less stress. Both the students and the administration have reacted positively to the change and feel that it has improved the physical education department immensely.

Bridge to the Future

Sex, drugs, and rock 'n roll. If there ever was a stereotypical view of teenagers, this has got to be it. But the reality of this stereotype is far from true. A case in point is the number of students involved in activities that are really concerned with their peers, their community, and their environment. Four clubs in the high school this past year immediately come to mind: SADD, TI, Peer Care, and Key Club.

SADD is a nationwide organization of Students Against Driving Drunk. The mayhem and carnage on the nation's highways have given rise to a dedicated organization whose intention is not only for the members to not drink and drive (each is required to sign a contract to that effect), but whose members will not allow anyone else to drive drunk. This past year the group created a mock-accident to represent the results of drinking and driving. Has the organization been successful? Certainly to its members who have had the courage to go on record for something they believe in, and certainly to the millions of people who hear their simple, but life-saving message.

Another school organization that also is concerned with the well-being of our fellow students is Teen Institute. TI is concerned with the overall use and consumption of drugs and alcohol by teens. The group is involved with inservice projects such as speaking at the middle and elementary school, and going on retreats. They also assist the Just Say 'No' club. TI is a group of very concerned peers.

Peer Care is yet another club that deals with student well-being. The club was reinstated this year after a period of inactivity. Peer care has twenty-eight members who have been on retreats, inservice meetings, and special workshops. One of these meetings included an "acquaintance rape" speaker in January. There are also smaller groups broken from the larger clan. These groups work together to cover the issues with a smaller number of people. Peer Care representative, Mrs. Materni, says that this makes it easier for the students to speak out and bond, instead of speaking to twenty-eight people at a time. Peer Care obviously fills a real need in a society of increased perplexity.

Key Club fills the void that the other clubs don't deal with. Key Club's central objective is promoting volunteerism. Its outreach is to the surrounding community and the environment. One new project of Key Club this year has been the recycling efforts. Those large orange containers in all of the rooms in the school for the purpose of aluminum and paper recycling were placed there through the efforts of Key Club. The organization is also responsible for the infamous "Kiss the Pig Contest", where students (for a small fee) got to pick their "favorite" teacher whom they most liked to see kiss the pig in front of the entire student body, (breath mints anyone?). Money raised from the project went to the Cleveland Free Clinic.

Who says students aren't involved and aware? With dedicated and committed students in organizations such as these, we can only hope that the bridge to the future looks a little brighter, and the old teenage myth is, in part, dispelled.

-P.J. Meyer

Yearbook

As you flip through your yearbook this year take time to appreciate the little things, like how those little numbers got on the pictures, how the pictures were made so big or so small, and who did it. The ZENITH staff is responsible for all the big and the little things that go on each page. When senior Dora McGregor saw everything we had to do for one page she said, "It's very interesting; all the tiny details you have to worry about just to make one page look good. It's very impressive." She was taken aback by all our efforts. A special thanks goes out this year to our dedicated staff. Mr. Balk, thank you for your time and patience. You made the sometimes bumpy roads a little smoother for all of us. Kelly, how deep in the hole are we?

Thanks for working so hard on our books; without you we would be knocking on everyone's door for donations. Elena, we appreciate you being there to pick up where we left off and helping us make our deadlines on time. Hopefully you learned a little from us this year. Skyhock, after the nearly fatal cross country copy fiasco, we feel that you found your niche. Carry on the schwartz tradition. And to all our new staff members, you have done a wonderful job this year. Your eagerness helped to make our jobs a lot easier. Thank you all very much and good luck to the ZENITH staff of 1992-1993!

Language Clubs

The language clubs of Chagrin Falls High School (French, German, & Spanish) are integral parts of our community as well as a way for students to learn about foreign countries. Aside from the usual trips abroad, our language clubs also are involved in an array of other activities within the community. For example, the Spanish Club plays the role of big brother to an inner city youth each year by taking him on various activities such as movies and bowling while the German Club makes it a habit of going caroling each year at Christmas time. But don't get the wrong idea. The language clubs are by no means all seriousness. Trips to the celebrated Hoffbraus Haus and to Peak n' Peak are common diversions for the German Club and what student could ever forget a trip overseas to Spain, France, or Germany. Not only are these trips enjoyable but they are also a great way to experience foreign cultures, foods, and drink.

Mole Day News Flash!

Flash! Call for a zip machine. The lucky ones get there early. Half-awake, half asleep. Mole Day. Parents can't understand. What's the allure? Brown Buckle-wheat pancakes? And oh so wonderful those quartered potatoes. Parents still don't understand. Call traffic guy 3WE Radio. "What?" So sophisticated he doesn't understand. Typical media type. Class of '94 petitions congress to make it a national holiday-FLASH-President Bush makes an appearance-pledges support. Mole Day Holiday-FLASH-super zipper. Mole Day dolls hit market. Surpass Cabbage Patch sales in day one. Nation goes wild-economy recovers. Yes!-FLASH-6.02x10<sup>-10</sup> -FLASH-Sun doesn't rise, moon doesn't move, kids are at school at 6:02. Mole Day is here, the English assignment sill is due, Kirk doesn't care and doesn't understand that things are different cause Mole Day's here. The law's been changed, and Quayle's on the run, our next president is having fun. This campaign is clear to see-CFHS Mole Day is forever, (or as long as Mr. Buckle can still make pancakes)-FLASH-

By Megan "Mole" Schatz

1. Filled up with Bucklewheat Pancakes, Molly Lubs questions why she got up so early on Mole Day.

2. The toothpicks in Mr. Roberts' eyes keep him awake while Mr. Buckle is satisfied eating his speciality, Bucklewheat Pancakes.

Debate and Academic Challenge Feature Intellectual Competition

After a year of no participation, the 1991-92 school year saw a rebirth in forensic activities. The smallest, but perhaps the most active club in the school, suffered through many Saturday debate tournaments at Cleveland area high schools. Participants gained much needed experience and expertise on such topics as genetic engineering, liberal arts education, and the use of deadly force.

Meanwhile, the Academic Challenge team placed second against Beachwood and Medina Highland high schools at WEWS TV's December 15th taping of the event.

The Huntington Personal Bankers

All banks say they're interested in serving you better. They say they care. They say they'll treat you right.

But only The Huntington assigns each and every customer a Personal Banker.

Someone whose job it is to understand your own, individual banking needs. Someone you can count on to bring the most appropriate financial expertise to bear on your behalf.

Someone whose job it is to take your banking needs—personally. Because let's face it, most of what a person needs from a bank is personal.

Only The Huntington goes to this extreme in customer service. We're so committed to it, we sign our name on the dotted line.

Closing It Out

A Year of Ups and Downs

What a year! Where to begin? Oh, okay, American troops kicked some serious butt over in the Middle East and the citizens of the United States once again found some much needed patriotism. Colin Powell, "Stormin'" Norman Schwarzkopf and President George Bush emerged as national heroes in the public's eye.

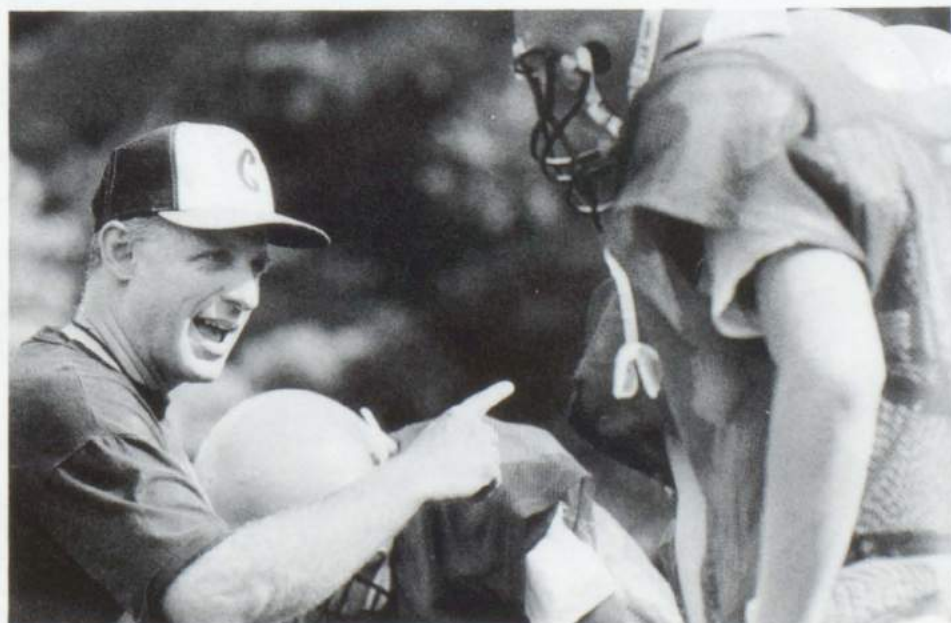

After pulling out, Americans had to deal with a sky-rocketing national deficit, an economic lull, and the threat of recession. President Bush, however, assured the American people the economy was fine and the threat of recession was merely a scare tactic used by the Democrats to help themselves in the upcoming elections. Yo! George, snap out of it. No one is buying, no one is selling, unemployment is in full bloom, and the National Debt is 1.4 trillion dollars (that's 1,4 and a lot of zeros). Ch-ching!

Revolution continued to run rampant through Eastern Europe, Croatia, Serbia, and the unsuccessful coup attempt of Soviet President Gorbachev all made headlines. The Soviet Union was dissolved, Boris Yeltsen seems to be the main man, a new name was given to the country, a new flag was created, and approximately ten new, independent states were born. But seriously, who holds the switch to those nuclear weapons?

In the fall, Americans had their eyes glued to the television with the live broadcasts of the Clarence Thomas hearing and the William Kennedy Smith trial. America watched four individuals (one was merely a "blob" to the public), be scrutinized and emotionally destroyed on national television. Still we don't truly know who is telling the truth, but let's thank whoever is lying for setting back male-female relations to the days of cave men. In the entertainment world, SILENCE OF THE LAMBS

Riding high on a wave of emotion, Courtney Bartel generates "more power to the hour, more bounce to the ounce."

Coach Bucar, "3rd and 24 guys, let's run a trap, we'll catch them off guard."

A smiling threesome of Lori Fischer, Jenny Dallas, and Elli Gibietis happily help out at the concessions stand.

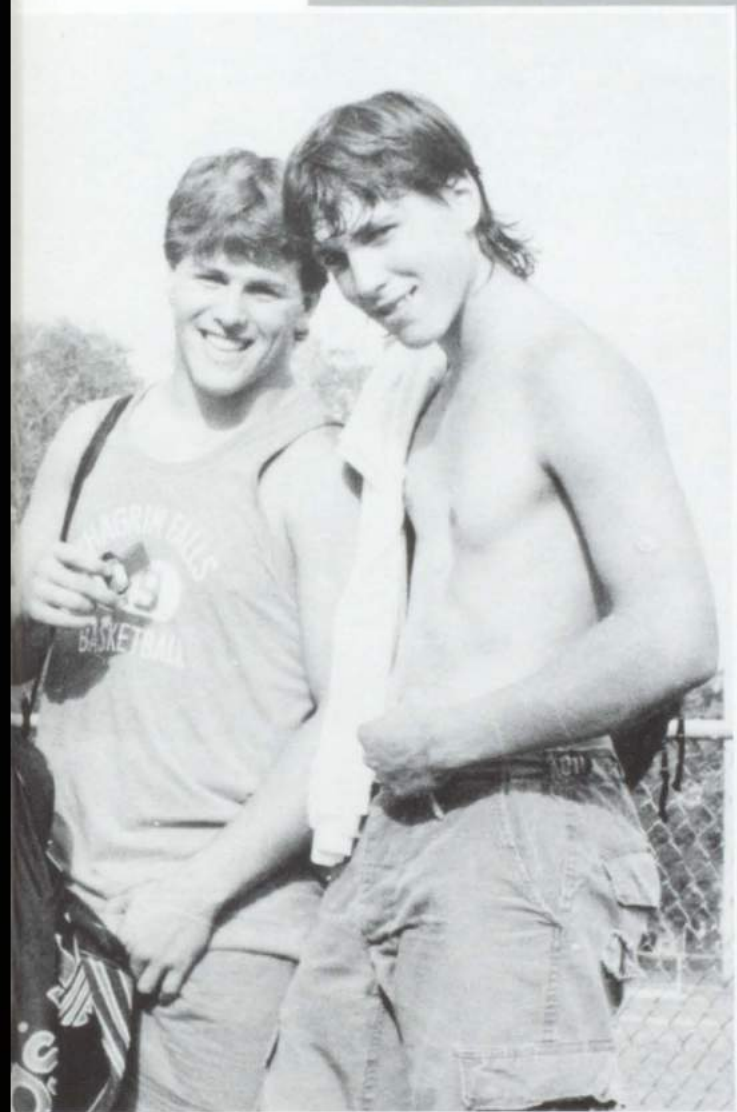

Even after "two-a-days", Mike Weber, Nick Sommer, Mike Esposito, and Brad McFarland, are still all smiles.

Suzanne "the salmon" Hewett celebrates the sweetness of success.

scared the *?@# ! out of us (the Jeffrey Dahmer trial added a little fuel to that fire). BEVERLY HILLS 90210 became the DYNASTY for the American teenie bopper scene. Michael Jackson, who looks rather pale these days, released "Black or White". Madonna showed us all what kind of girl we all knew she was anyway in her movie TRUTH OR DARE. Guns n' Roses finally made another album, and last but certainly not least, Saturday morning television star Pee-Wee Herman was caught red handed. Bada-bing!

On the heavier side, American's mourned the tragic news of Earvin "Magic" Johnson's contraction of the HIV virus. The news shocked the world, but maybe it is a much needed wake up call. ANYONE CAN GET AIDS!!!

In Cleveland, the Browns hired a new head coach (a great public relations guy), the Cav's had a half-way decent team, and the Indians got rid of any player who could catch, hit, or throw. Construction of the long awaited Rock and Roll Hall of Fame was still stalled, and the Gateway project finally broke ground. (Just in the nick of time for the '95 season!)

In Chagrin the only big news was the "first hotly contested mayoral race" in twenty years. Big deal! Two candidates were Democrats, one was a Republican. Guess who won! The controversial new IVEX-Cleveland Street Bridge was opened, much to the demise of the Chagrin "traditionalist" who feel it tarnished the village's image. But other than that, nothing seems to have changed, in a place where change is seldom welcome. We still have those pestering tourists who come to town, buy ice cream, and ask questions like, "Where's the falls?" And we still have kids hanging out behind Your's Truly, smoking cigarettes, gossiping, and looking for something to do. Hmmm, finding something to do seems to be the story of every Chagrin kid's life.

What does Megan Ballantyne think she's doing parking in the Senior lot?
